More Civilian Goods Coming

U. S. Loosens Steel Supplies

Manufacturers Hiking Goals With New Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Makers of civilian goods raised their production goals for the second quarter of 1953 today, on the basis of government assurance they will have more steel than at any time since the Korean war began.

The Defense Production Administration (DPA) has authorized them to use steel up to 70 per cent of pre-Korea rate.

This is about 16 per cent more than for the third quarter of 1952, the previous high since the government began rationing scarce materials to assure adequate supplies for defense.

Acting DPA Chief Ralph Trigg said the bigger allotments in the second quarter should permit:

Increased construction of small schools, hospitals, power and transportation facilities and public works; the highest rate of highway construction ever; an output of 9,000 freight cars a month, the highest since materials were rationed; and new housing construction at the rate of one million units a year.

HE SAID STEEL provided should allow production of 1¼ million passenger automobiles and 315,000 trucks. This compares with steel provided to build only 700,000 cars in the first quarter of the new year.

The companies previously had been authorized to produce as many as 1½ million autos if they can obtain steel from abroad or through other sources.

Aluminum producers weighed, meanwhile, a conditional government offer for a ceiling price increase of one-half cent a pound on primary aluminum pig and ingot and 4 per cent on fabricated aluminum products.

Defense Mobilizer Henry Fowler tied the proposed increase to a provision that the Big Three producers agree to certain changes in their contracts with the U. S.

Among them would be the deletion of the right of the government or the companies to cancel contracts for aluminum before they run their full five years.

Fowler's proposal was made in identical letters to the Aluminum Company of America, the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and the Reynolds Metals Company.

The companies got a bigger increase last August, but they said it wasn't enough to meet their expansion programs and asked Fowler for another hike.

Spellman Leaves For Korean Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman left by plane today to spend Christmas Day with American troops in Korea.

He said he would say three Christmas Day masses for the troops.

Siamese Twins Are Separated By Chicago Surgery Team

CHICAGO (AP)—In a history-making operation, surgeons Wednesday completed the separation of 15-month-old Siamese twin boys who were joined at the heads.

The twins, several hours after the 12 hour and 40 minute operation, were reported in critical condition. This was regarded as natural for such dangerous and lengthy surgery.

The separation was the first successful one of its kind in medical history. In two previous attempts to cut apart babies joined at the heads, the patients died.

No member of the medical team which participated in the operation would predict if the infant twins will be able to recover. Earlier doctors said the odds were against the twins survival from the start but that the boys were "unbelievably hearty."

"The ultimate outcome of the operation is as yet unknown," said a spokesman for the Research and Educational Hospitals of the University of Illinois, where the operation was performed.

Stanley Olson, dean of the university's College of Medicine, said the twins still had a "long way to go" before their survival is assured.

The most expert kind of post-operative and nursing care will be needed, Olson said, as the babies had been subjected to intense shock and had lost considerable blood.

Surgeons watched over the twins throughout the night. They were taken from the operating room at 8:30 p. m. to the pediatric ward of the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, a university unit, and placed in separate cribs.

The babies, their heads swathed in bandages, were placed under oxygen tents. A university spokesman said physicians plan to resume surgery today on the tiny patients, Roger Lee and Rodney Dee Brodie of Moline, Ill.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie, were in the hospital during the operation.

"It sure looks good to see them apart," said Brodie, a farmer and meat cutter. He and his wife, a former nurse, are the parents of four other children, all normal.

Work On New Chimney Is Begun For City's Huge Christmas Gift

Work on a new chimney for Circleville's Christmas "present" was begun Thursday afternoon as more specific materials and cash donations were awaited.

The "present" is a new four-room house being constructed of donated materials and labor for Montford (the Mole) Pollock and his family.

The Pollocks were left homeless eight days ago when an early morning fire completely destroyed their house, located behind the ice plant on Island Road.

Since that time, sufficient materials and elbow grease have been donated by local business places and individuals to virtually insure the Pollocks of enjoying Christmas in their own home on the site of the burned home.

WITH CASH gifts and material donations, enough supplies are now believed to be on hand to finish construction of the exterior of the bungalow by the first of next week —Christmas week.

But yet needed are material or cash to provide a floor underlay—either wood or fibre—and for inside panelling.

Workmen are expected to be at the site Saturday and Sunday under direction of Karl Smith, city construction firm operator who is supervising the project.

Thursday's brick-laying project on the chimney was being done by Firemen Fred Howell and Bernard Wolfe, instrumental in laying the cement block foundation for the dwelling.

Workmen Saturday and Sunday are to complete the sheathing, the roof superstructure and, if materials are available, the flooring.

MORE FUNDS are expected to be added to the project when Circleville American Legion's drum and bugle corps makes its final tour for Christmas toys Thursday night.

Persons who have no toys to offer will be asked by the corps whether they might not contribute to the house project.

Individual donations toward the project here Wednesday amounted to another $35 in cash. List of donors will be announced as soon as the building program is completed.

Drunk Flying Charge Filed Against Pilot

WASHINGTON C. H. (AP)—Charges of reckless and drunk flying were filed today against a Washington C. H. aerial photographer, whose rented airplane was chased over Southwestern Ohio by state highway patrolmen Wednesday night.

William Thompson, 27, was held in the Fayette County jail under $500 bond, Sheriff Orland Hayes reported.

Patrolman M. E. Brickles gave this account of the chase:

At 11:30 a. m. Wednesday Thompson and another man rented an airplane at the airport at Sabina. That night airport officials reported the plane overdue.

At 9:30 p. m. the Lunken Airport near Cincinnati called the patrol to say that the missing plane had just taken off and that the pilot apparently had been drinking.

The patrol dispatched a car to Sabina. It arrived minutes after residents of the area reported a plane buzzed the airport there and then flew off in the direction of Washington C. H.

Police here reported almost two dozen calls of a plane without lights buzzing the city. Then came a call saying a plane had knocked off a chimney. Another reported a high tension wire was clipped by the plane.

Twenty minutes later the plane landed in a field near the Armco Co. plant here. State patrolmen searched the area and finally located Thompson. He was injured slightly and was taken to Fayette County Hospital.

Ohio Teacher Pay Above Average

The Ohio Educational Association said a research study showed the average teacher in Ohio is making $3,642, compared with the national average of $3,405. This is a boost of $245 over last year.

State Takes Bypass Map Loaned City

Both groups in the Route 23 controversy pondered Thursday over possible meaning of a minor detail in the slow-moving picture.

The series of aerial photographs were loaned to the city some time ago when local property owners asked for a "more definite" idea as to location of the bypass proposed by the state.

Since that time Gerhardt has been making an effort, under direction of City Council, to sound out property owner sentiment on a proposed change in the corporation limits. It was regarded as the first major step toward a decision on the bypass issue here.

GERHARDT, shortly after receiving Council's instructions, contacted a number of the property owners involved but apparently only one has registered a final decision on the city-limit question.

Container Corp. replied by letter that the bypass along the route now suggested could not be approved by the firm.

Some of the delay in responding to Gerhardt's query apparently is based on belief the location of the bypass still hasn't been pinpointed sufficiently. The solicitor said he was asked to have the location "pinned down" closer than it has been.

The Highways Department employe who took away the aerial map said he was acting for Richard Ricketts, an official of the highways branch's engineering section.

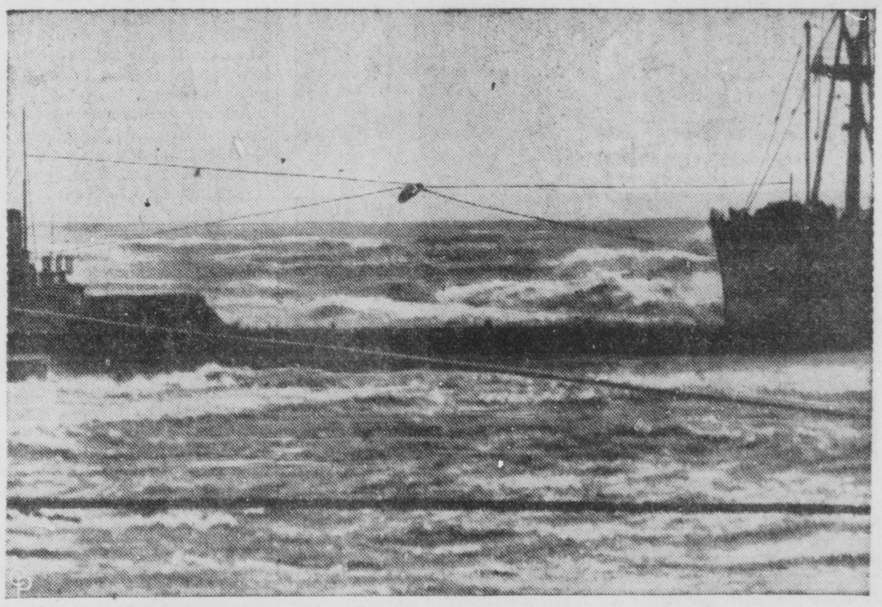

Asked if the map is needed for some other purpose in this area, the employe said:

"We're planning for Route 23 both north and south of Circleville—up to the city limits, that is. And of course we're waiting to see what's decided here on the bypass question."

Cold Air Blast Heads For Ohio

The cold air centered over the North-Central states. It was 10 below zero early today in Bemidji, Minn., and -4 in Jamestown, N. D. The icy air moved southward and eastward north of the Ohio River, with temperatures below freezing in most areas.

RIDING A FEW FEET ABOVE storm-tossed waters off Leghorn, Italy, an American seaman is transported by breeches buoy from the stern section of the broken U. S. Navy supply ship Grommet Reefer to a rescue craft standing off shore. All 40 seamen aboard the ship were carried to safety after the freighter split in two on a reef. Helicopters from the carriers Midway and Leyte helped bring the bulk of the stranded crewmen to safety. The supply vessel was carrying seven tons of Christmas turkeys for GIs in Austria and Italy when winds of gale force piled it on the offshore rocks.

City Schools Close Tuesday

Circleville schools, originally announced to be dismissing Wednesday for their annual Christmas vacations, will dismiss instead at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Wayne and Washington Township schools, with high school youngsters attending Circleville high school, will follow the same schedule.

Top Yankee Ace Collects His Ninth Mig

SEOUL (AP) — America's hottest Sabrejet ace shot down another Communist Mig fighter and a second Mig was damaged in air battles high over North Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported.

Lt. James F. Low of Sausalito, Calif., credited with his ninth Mig, said it was the roughest dogfight he has had in Korea.

The damaged Mig was credited to Maj. Richard L. Ayersman of Sacramento, Calif., bringing his score to three Migs destroyed and three damaged.

Ground action was light.

The Air Force reported its fighter-bombers smashed a large Communist troop concentration area about 20 miles below the North Korean capital, Yyongyang.

The Air Force said planes from four wings showered explosives on the Reds, destroying more than 70 buildings and damaging 30.

Low, who has bagged three Migs since returning from the U. S., praised the flying ability of the pilot whose Mig he shot down.

"We went through everything in the book and that pilot really knew his stuff," he said. "It was the roughest fight I ever had."

Tito's Break With Vatican Brings Fresh West Worry

The American government's concern with the situation arises from its desire, as a matter of major policy, to establish the closest political and military cooperation among all the European countries, in and out of the North Atlantic Alliance, in the interest of checking Soviet power.

Tito's diplomatic break with the Vatican Wednesday probably will make it more difficult to achieve this aim in two regards: (1) tying Yugoslavia closer to the Western European nations, and (2) trying to solve the Italian-Yugoslav dispute over Trieste.

Furthermore, some officials think there may be difficulties with Congress, where the anti-Soviet Communist government of Yugoslavia has always been regarded with skepticism.

TITO BROKE with Russia in mid-1948. Since that time the U. S has tightened its relations with him and provided substantial military and economic assistance.

During the fiscal year which ended last June 30 the U. S., Britain and France together provided Tito with $120 million. This year their help totals $99 million. In both years the American share has been $78 million.

The Truman administration has regarded Yugoslavia as a great asset to the West because (1) it is a living example of the ability of a satellite nation to brake with Moscow and survive, and (2) Tito's 30-odd divisions, though they have been badly in need of modernization, are a valuable addition to anti-Soviet strength.

Efforts to get along with Tito have been marked by frequent difficulties. He has repeatedly made clear he is a doctrinaire Communist with no interest in adopting democratic ways.

Morover, he has had a long feud with the Roman Catholic church, culminated Wednesday by the diplomatic break.

Continuance Of President's Power Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House advisory group recommended today that Congress make permanent the President's power to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

The President now has authority, which expires March 31, to put into effect specific reorganization plans unless they are vetoed by either branch of Congress with a definite time limit.

The President's Advisory Committee on Management termed this arrangement "the greatest single enabling step toward management improvement in the federal government in this generation."

The 13-member advisory group, set up three years ago, is headed by Thomas A. Morgan, board chairman of the Sperry Gyroscope Company. In its final report to President Truman, the committee said that during the last fiscal year the government realized savings of some $36 million as a result of suggestions from employes.

The committee said it believed that the government, with some 1,600,000 civilian employes and another 3,600,000 men and women in uniform, cannot be run like private business. The committee said that "no business organization has its governing authority so divided and diffused and, consequently, its policy and program objectives so difficult of interpretation by its managerial officials."

Church Donations Hiked By 10 Pct.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Council of Churches reported Wednesday 47 Protestant and Eastern orthodox churches in the United States contributed $1,286,633,160 for all purposes in the last year.

The report as made by Dr. T. K. Thompson, executive secretary of the council's joint Department of Stewardship and Benevolence. The contributions were 10.3 per cent greater than in the previous year.

Defense Fund For '53 Set At $239 Million

SHAPE Chief Believes $428 Million To Be Security 'Minimum'

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty nations agreed today to spend $239,600,000 in 1953 for airports and other solid defenses against Soviet aggression.

This is just about half the $428 million which Gen. Matthw B. Ridgway, supreme commander in Europe, had outlined as the "minimum" to provide security.

Rene Pleven, French defense minister, said the reduced figure was agreed upon by the NATO Council today, after a four-day debate. The money voted will provide enough to begin work on airports and other long term projects as soon as weather permits.

Decision on the final figure was taken a few hours before the projected conclusion of the meeting, called to get the 14 member nations to vote all the money they could afford without going broke.

THE STATESMEN met in the shadow of hard times over Europe, an economic slowdown which led them to take what their military advisers believe to be calculated risks. Among them were:

1. A broad decision to scale down army, air force and naval goals for the coming year. The advisers had wanted the equivalent of 75 standard size divisions under arms by the end of 1953; now they will have to settle for about 60.

2. An attempt to modernize gradually their weapons over the next few years, slowly getting rid of out-dated planes, guns and tanks and concentrating also on guided missiles and atomic bombs.

3. A cut, to at least half, of the $428 million program for 1953 of building bases, roads, airports, and harbor installations.

The Council also decided to meet here again next Spring. No date was fixed.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting is expected to be held after a projected meeting of President-elect Eisenhower and

Warren County real property is valued at $47,835,470, an increase of aboout 10 million dollars, or 26 per cent, over 1951.

The Clinton County valuation increased 20 per cent to $38,018,630.

Fayette County showed a 9 per cent increase to $37,800,990. The board now has approved tax abstracts for 63 counties under the state's equalization program. The program is designed to standardize methods of assessment and equalize distribution of state money to the counties.

Sailor Spends 28 Cold Hours In Swamp Before His Rescue

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A sailor who clung to mangrove bushes in Angel Fish Creek 20 miles south of Miami for more than 28 hours during some of Florida's coldest weather was reported in "satisfactory" condition in Veterans Hospital today.

Fred Tyzzer Jr., released from a hospital only two weeks ago with badly burned hand, survived a night of 35-40 degree cold stripped to his undershorts.

The 38-year-old Navy veteran watched while a Coast Guard PBY and a helicopter flew overhead in search for him, but couldn't attract their attention. Finally, the Coast Guard abandoned the search presumed he had drowned.

Tyzzer lost his balance and fell from the tugboat Logan about 11 a. m. Tuesday between Cape Florida and Cutter Bank. He was rescued late Wednesday by Capt. Cleveland Knowles aboard his fishing vessel.

"BECAUSE of the cold weather, I had plenty of clothes on when I fell off the boat," Tyzzer said. "Thanks to my training as a senior Red Cross life saver, was able to peel off my shoes, two pairs of socks, two pairs of pants, sweater and jacket."

Capt. George Baron, skipper of the tugboat didn't notice that his only crewman had disappeared until half an hour later.

Tyzzer watched the tug until it moved out of sight, then shed his clothing and swam three or four miles to the mangrove swamp. All night long he buried his face in the mangrove roots to ward off the chill northwest wind.

Knowles, who has fished the area for 10 years, was headed for port when he saw Tyzzer waving a mangrove twig.

Tyzzer estimated he reached the swampy, mangrove-studded shore about 1 p. m. He waved vainly at passing boats and the helicopter.

He waded through knee - deep mud toward Angel Fish Creek, which divides Key Largo, but no boats came up the channel before nightfall. Again Wednesday he waved at boats and plans, but none saw him.

"He was weak and in shock but seemed in pretty fair shape," Knowles said. "We put some clothes on him and fed him some coffee and cup cakes. He wouldn't eat much—said he was afraid it might give him cramps."

Sawyer Says Too Many U. S. Aides Used In West Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secrtary of Commerce Sawyer says the United States has "too many people and too many agencies doing too many things" in Western Europe, at the cost of waste and confusion.

This was the meat of a hard-swinging attack on U. S. aid administration in Europe which Sawyer, just back from a 10-country study in Europe, inserted into a report to President Truman.

Sawyer said personnel abroad can be cut sharply, and some agencies abolished.

He said he found Europe in better economic shape than he expected, and that "tremendous recovery" has taken place in countries receiving U. S. aid.

Europe can march on to prosperity, he said, if it does not lose faith in itself.

Sawyer undertook the study, ended early this month, at Truman's request. He took with him finance and trade officials from the Treasury and Commerce Department, and two businessmen. All joined him, he said, in the conclusions set forth in the report.

Sawyer did not disagree with the idea of extending the roughly $50 billion in aid Western Europe has received since the war. He said it was "indispensable to the rebuilding of war-damaged economies and to stopping the spread of communism."

But he took vigorous exception to the administrative structure built up to hand out money, goods and advice. Furthermore, he said, the time has come for the U. S. to halt direct aid—with some exception so such a military aid and reduced economic help to Italy and Greece—in favor of long-term help in the form of private investment and increased trade.

Most Europeans he talked to, Sawyer indicated, agreed that the time has come for "trade, not aid." He added bluntly:

"This situation does not require another study employing a large staff. Nor is the solution the creation of one new overall permanent department whose only assignment would be to give away Uncle Sam's money or handle purely foreign economic affairs."

Ike Studying Peace Views Given In MacArthur Parley

NEW YORK (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower cloaked in deep secrecy today the Korean war and world peace views outlined to him by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Aides said Eisenhower was studying ideas MacArthur set forth at their history-making conference Wednesday, but they added that no detailed public account of what was discussed can be expected.

After the conference in the Manhattan home of John Foster Dulles, secretary of state-designate, the two five-star generals told newsmen they had discussed the problem of winning peaec in Korea and the rest of the world.

The luncheon get-together at Dulles' four-story town house resulted from a MacArthur speech here Dec 5. He said then there is "a clear and definite solution to the Korean conflict."

When Wednesday's meeting was over, neither Eisenhower nor MacArthur said whether they were in agreement on a course to follow in Korea. Neither mentioned the "clear and definite solution" which MacArthur had talked about.

AN EISENHOWER aide said privately there was no doubt that MacArthur had set forth a plan.

"After all," said the aide, "that was the whole purpose of the meeting."

The conference started a few minutes after 1 p. m., and Eisenhower and MacArthur left Dulles' home 2 hours and 15 minutes later.

The President-elect told reporters after the meeting:

"Our general topic of conversation was peace. We discussed the possibility of peace in Korea with particular reference to the world situation, in which, of course, such Korean peace would have to be determined."

MacArthur said he had "a very pleasant reunion with the President-elect," and remarked it was the first time they had seen each other in nearly six years.

MacArthur also said the meeting marked "resumption of friendship and comradeship of 35 years."

MacArthur supported Sen. Robert A. Taft for the GOP presidential nomination. He gave no public backing to Eisenhower during the campaign.

In his Dec. 5 speech, however, he spoke kindly of Eisenhower. He appealed for support of the new administration.

Prime Minister Churchill of Britain in Washington.

Meanwhile, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Britain said that "in time of war" Adm. Lord Mountbatten will be boss of NATO's Mediterranean naval and air forces.

ALEXANDER, Britain's minister of defense, told a news conference: "While the United States Sixth Fleet is not now under the new Mediterranean command, the new commander-in-chief will be responsible for coordinating the activities in time of war of the American fleet with those of other naval and air units operating in the Mediterranean."

This was the first public announcement on just how much authority the new Mediterranean naval commander - in - chief will have. The ministers of the 14 NATO nations Tuesday approved both the setting up of the new naval command and the appointment by Britain of Lord Mountbatten.

The NATO communique had distinguished between the responsibilities of Mountbatten and U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney, who commands both NATO's southern command and the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Judges To Study Conservancy Deal

COLUMBUS (AP)—Judges in the 17-county Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District will consider the question again of dissolving the district Jan. 30.

They adjourned to that date Wednesday after requesting attorneys to file briefs in the case.

The judges, meeting in executive session, gave prosecutors of Union and Delaware Counties 10 days in which to file briefs on their motin to dissolve the district, the latest step by county commissioners in their long fight to break up the district.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP)—Grains recovered from an early sinking spell on the Board of Trade today, wheat leading the upturn.

Corn held steady while other grains sold-off in initial trading. But corn could not get up enough steam for a good advance. Oats and soybeans recovered about all their early declines.

Wheat at noon was ⅜ to 1 cent higher, December $2.30⅛, corn ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, December $1.61½, oats ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, December 85⅝, soybeans ¾ lower to ¾ higher, January $3.00½, and lard 15 to 22 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $9.45.

U.S. Farmers Set Record In Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers this year turned in a record production job that may not be repeated for several years.

In its final 1952 crop report, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday the harvest of crops was second to the record set in 1948 and that the production of livestock and livestock products was by far the largest in history.

The combined output of crops and livestock and livestock product was also the largest in history.

But this year's output was so large that it has started the piling up of some farm surpluses. This situation may lead the government to call upon producers to go a little easier next year. Already the Agriculture Department has suggested less wheat. It soon will suggest less cotton.

Complicating the picture is the fact that foreign markets are easing off considerably from war and postwar levels which farmers have become accustomed to satisfying.

This year's farm achievement was remarkable. It was achieved in the face of severe droughts that plagued many producing areas in the Southeast, South, Midwest and Southwest.

French To Draft Resident Yankees

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly voted Wednesday night to draft into France's army Americans of conscription age living here more than a year, either in one stay or on several visits.

The draft age in France is 18½ to 25 years. The assembly passed the bill without a debate. Raymond Triboulet, speaking for the National Defense Committee, frankly said the action was being taken as reciprocity "of the worst kind" for U. S. laws which make Frenchmen living in the United States subject to American military service.

New Ohio Birth Rate High Seen

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Ohio can expect a new high birth rate this year, says the state health department.

Health records of the department show that up to October, there were more births than at the same time last year.

Dr. John D. Porterfield, state 167,025 births recorded for the first 10 months of 1952—3,586 more than in 1951.

Farmers Plan Study Of Age

Farmers and homemakers this winter will devote time to problems of old age. Extension agents and local health and welfare organizations are preparing plans for community projects to be presented at winter meetings.

It started at the St. Louis "gerontological congress." The conference on problems of old age brought out the fact that better mental health, physical care and nutrition and wholesome community projects for the elderly can postpone old age 10 to 15 years.

Society Discusses Drive For March

Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children is looking forward to March and the nationwide Easter Seal campaign.

Plans and prospects for the drive were outlined to members of the local Society by W. J. Treece, field representatve of the cerebral palsy treatment center at Columbus.

Mrs. Walter Heine at the same meeting reported on a study she made of the Mt. Logan School in Chillicothe. The school, in operation for the last 17 years, centers its efforts on special education for handicapped children.

Mrs. Heine explained the Mt. Logan School is supported partly by the board of education and partly by the county.

Pickaway County's branch of the Ohio Crippled Children's Society has been especally interested in developing the field of special education.

River Steamer Bought As Hotel

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Purchase of the Ohio River steamer Gordon C. Greene by a corporation made up of Portsmouth residents was announced today.

The steamer, formerly owned by the Greene Line, is to be berthed at the foot of Market Street here and converted into a hotel and dining room. It has 104 guest rooms and dining facilities for 150 persons. It will give Portsmouth relief from crowded conditions brought on by the atomic energy plant development in Pike County.

Man Wants Buried With His Dog

STEUBENVILLE (AP) — A friend found a note on the kitchen table at the home of George Melching, 49, Wednesday.

It asked that Melching's dog be buried in the same casket with him. The friend, Edgar Sampey, began a hasty search and found Melching's body under his car in the garage. Dr. John P. Smarrella, county coroner, said Melching had taken his life by running the car's engine and breating fumes from the exhaust. The dog was not in the garage.

SHAPE Cmdr. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said Brind's tenure of appointment ends April 1, 1953, and the change is in accordance with assignment practices normally followed by the British government for its senior officers.

Dirksen Certain Taft Wants Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill) said today he is "quite certain that Sen. Taft would like to be majority leader of the Senate," thus dispelling lingering doubt that the Ohioan wants the post.

Taft himself has said only he is available for the floor leadership, but Dirksen made plain that he had been in touch with Taft and was expressing more than just personal impression. Dirksen is one of Taft's closest associates.

Fayette Ag Agent Facing Meat Probe

WASHINGTON C. H. (AP) — Fayette County extension agent W. W. Montgomery is to appear in municipal court here Saturday concerning the uninspected meat he already has told the local board of health he sold to the Children's Home

He appeared in court Wednesday on three charges of "selling or offering for sale meat that had not been inspected" in accordance with the Health Department regulations.

He posted a $500 cash bond for his appearance Saturday morning.

The case broke wide open Sunday when the Health Board was called into special session to hear Montgomery's story.

Another special meeting was held by the board Tuesday afternoon to consider what action should be taken regarding the disposition of the approximately 1,500 pounds of beef Montgomery said had been placed in locker plant after six calves had been slaughtered on his farm.

After considerable discussion, and hearing what Dr. D. R. Junk, the board's inspector, had to say regarding the meat, the board voted unanimously to stand by its action taken Sunday and to permit Montgomery to keep the meat for consumption by himself and family.

Montgomery did not deny that he had sold the uninspected meat when questioned by the Health Board at its Sunday meeting. He said he and his son, Barton, a former meat inspector for the Army, had butchered six calves on their farm when they were bleeding excessively after they had been castrated. It was the meat from these calves, he said, that he had sold. No price was mentioned. The calves, Montgomery estimates, weighed about 400 pounds each.

There has been no indication that the state Extension Service headquarters at Ohio State University in Columbus has taken any official note of the affair. An assistant director in the office said Tuesday that he had heard nothing of it. Another in the office said he had heard reports of it, but said he had not heard of any special attention having been given it.

Pair Married 17 Years Gets Church Rites

IPSWICH, England (AP)—After 17 years of married life, Mrs. Elsie Weedon finally took her husband with her to church for a wedding "in the sight of God."

Other villagers of nearby Witnesham were astonished to hear about it today. The original wedding had taken place in a civil registry office.

"The organ played, and I had a nice wedding dress, a bridesmaid and everything," Mrs. Weedon said of her second nuptials when the news leaked out.

They have four daughters—two sets of twins—and did not want to cause gossip about the delayed ceremony, which was held Sunday.

The happy bridegroom, 41-year-old Desmond, couldn't have been more gallant had he been 24. His comment:

"As I waited at the altar and saw my wife advancing up the aisle, I thought she looked just as sweet and charming as she did that other wedding day in 1935."

181,000 Pupils Go To Fire Traps

COLUMBUS (AP)—More than 181,000 of the 1,225,537 school pupils in Ohio are housed in buildings which are potential fire traps.

This is one of the conditions the State Department of Education found in a survey now being completed. Financed by the federal government, the survey was started in March, 1951, by A. D. St. Clair, a field agent for the department. Its aim is to determine the present condition of school buildings and the needs and the resources of local school districts.

National Limited Leaves Tracks

The railroad said none of the approximately 100 passengers was hurt seriously enough to prevent them from continuing to their destination on a substitute train. The wreck, between here and Grafton, W. Va., tied up the B & O's main line tracks to St. Louis.

George (Scram) Rambo collected $36 from his friends and turned it over to Koch to help with the Home's Christmas preparations.

Famous Santa Editorial To Be Repeated

You know about the New York Sun reply to a little girl's letter asking if truly there was a Santa Claus.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," it said in a classic attempt to bridge the make - believe and reality. "He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exists. . ."

That was more than a half-century ago, but Virginia, now Mrs. Edward Douglas and a grandmother six times over, remembers that all she could understand then was the assurance in the first line.

"It sustained me for two or three years," she said today. "In spite of the editorial, I had a great feeling of disappointment when I found out the truth. I remember I tried to believe even when I knew Santa wasn't real."

Virginia O'Hanlon, aged 8 in 1897, wanted to be sure. So she wrote a letter to the Sun asking, "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus!"

"He lives, and he lives forever," the editorial said. "A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

The editorial received national acclaim and has been reprinted widely over the years.

Mrs. Edwards will tell its story on a television program this Sunday (ABC, 7 p. m. EST) and on Christmas Eve read the editorial, as she has for seven years, over the CBS radio network.

WAVERLY, O. (AP)—Village Council voted Wednesday night to extend the village limits to include areas where homes for workers at the nearby atomic plant are expected to be built.

"I look for 1,000 new homes to be built here in the near future," Lt. Gov. George D. Nye told the Council. Nye, who lives in Pike County, represented the county planning commission.

Council appointed a committee to decide on what area to annex after studying a report by Col. Alden E. Stilson of Columbus, water and sewage consultant for the village. The committee also will contact property owners in the fringe area.

Federal Aid To Be Hiked In Atom Area

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government has agreed to pay more toward the cost of improving roads near a new atomic energy plant in Southern Ohio, but is insisting the state also must help.

The Bureau of Public Roads has agreed to provide 74 per cent of the estimated 24 million dollar cost of road projects in the plant area, acting roads Commissioner W. J. V. O'Leary informed Rep. Ayres.

A bureau official told a reporter this is six or seven per cent more than original government commitments to the state. But O'Leary added in his letter to Ayres:

"Much of this work will be of long-range benefit to the state of Ohio for purposes other than serving the atomic energy plant.

"It is proper that the state contribute a portion of the cost, particularly for such work as is contemplated in the improvement of U. S. 23 between Portsmouth and Chillicothe."

Ayres had suggested to the bureau that the government pay virtually all the bill for road improvement in the plant area. He voiced fears that some vitally needed road projects elsewhere in the state might be deferred so the state could divert money to the atomic roads program.

Missing Gun Tied To Case Against Ohioan

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A pistol missing from Pvt. Eugene R. Walters' Army unit was found near the place where 18-year old Mamie Ruth Shelton was abducted at gunpoint, witnesses testified today.

He also is charged with desertion, theft of the pistol and an Army jeep, and with robbing Miss Shelton's two soldier companions and stealing their car. He has pleaded innocent.

Miss Shelton, whose stepfather, M.-Sgt. F. B. Burns, is from Hot Springs, Va., testified Wednesday that she recognized Walters as her assailant by his voice.

Defense attorneys brought out from today's witnesses that there was no rust on the pistol, although it was found on the ground a month after the abduction last Feb. 3.

BY JOHN SEMBOWER

Your automobile is more likely to be stolen sometime during the next 12 months than anything else you own.

This is the grim warning of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which this month is launching a crusade to cut down car stealing which it estimates now accounts for approximately $200 million worth of stolen property annually, and is on the increase.

Conferences are being held by the FBI and local law-enforcement officials in 100 cities to map a coordinated drive against auto thievery.

A similar crisis only a half century ago led to the formation of the Anti-Horse Thief association to combat what then was becoming the leading type of larceny.

THE DIFFERENCE is that law enforcement machinery then was considered to have broken down in the face of the menace and private citizens took over, while today the FBI and local police are taking the lead.

They urge automobile owners to co-operate by taking these simple precautions:

2—Where possible, avoid parking in unlighted areas or overnight on the street.

3—Do not leave parked cars for extended periods without a regular check as to whether they still are there. A surprising number of automobiles are stolen right out of the garage.

4—Do not leave any articles of value in a parked car where the article can be seen by passersby.

In analyzing car thefts in 400 cities, the FBI has "typed" the auto thief.

He either is a professional working in one of the big rings, or he is the "joyrider" who usually is a youngster who hops into a car and speeds off without thinking very clearly where he goes from there.

Both are frustrated by ordinary precautions, says the FBI, although it is acknowledged the use of "ignition jumpers" and devices for gaining entry into cars always makes them fairly vulnerable to seizure.

The FBI points out, however, that the professional usually has to work fast and with relative safety under his lawless code, so that he ignores all but "the sure touches."

Insurance companies are in the act, too, pointing out that many of their policies now deny owners any recovery for a stolen car if its loss results from the owner's own negligence. Usually this consists of leaving the keys in the unattended car, often with the engine running.

The FBI also is enlisting the cooperation of public parking garages and local automobile dealers. Each is being asked to report any suspicious circumstances, and to aid in smashing the big interstate rings which are believed to be active.

Auto theft rings apparently have elaborate setups which literally redesign a stolen car within a few hours, and grind down the engine block so that substitute motor numbers may be stamped in.

They are regarded as particularly vicious because they supply stolen cars to be used in committing other crimes.

It is pointed out anyone who buys a stolen auto must give it up if it is identified, even if he acquires it through a reputable dealer, because there is no way that you can get good title to stolen property.

So the FBI says the slogan is, "Let the buyer beware!" and he should carefully check all title documents and car numbers.

THE TREND of auto thievery has risen until now it totals 41 per cent of all larcenies, and it has soared 90 per cent in only five years. With a record-breaking 43 million cars on the road in the United States—a rise of 44 per cent since 1942—it is feared that it will continue to rise.

In 1948, there were 4,013 automobiles stolen in Chicago, of which 3,952 were recovered; 101 were stripped. In 1951 there were 7,287 stolen, 7,014 recovered, and 443 stripped. This year the total may go above 8,000.

The relatively high recovery figures indicate that despite its growing prevalence, stealing autos is an "unhealthy" practice. The aim of the law enforcement groups is to make it pay still less to criminals.

"Eternal vigilance on the part of the public" is the biggest ally now being sought in the crusade. This includes not only locking cars and keeping an eye on them, but also not picking up hitchhikers or leaving the doors unlocked during night time driving.

HowardHughes Again Boss Of RKO Studios

The manufacturer of airplanes, oil tools and movies was elected chairman of the board of RKO yesterday, although he recently sold his controlling interest in the studio.

Noah Dietrich, J. Miller Walker, Edward G. Burke Jr., A. D. Simpson and Hughes comprise the board. Hughes succeeds Maurice H. Bent, New York City broker, who bowed out only a week after his election to the bard. No reason was given for his withdrawal.

Hughes sold his interest to Ralph Stolkin of Chicago and a group of associates several months ago for $7,093,940. Stolkin still owes Hughes 5½ million dollars and Burke now is the lone Stolkin representative on the board.

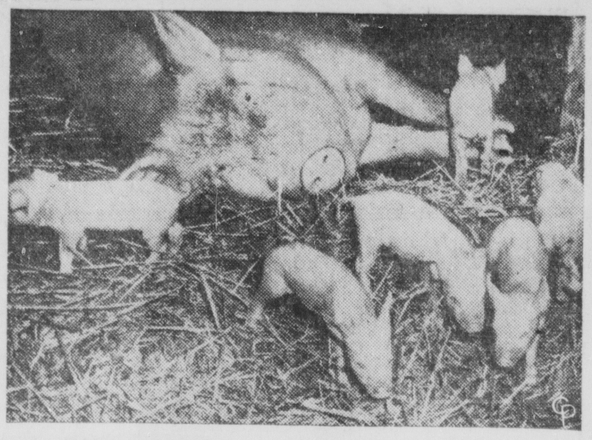

Seal Sale Nets $3,181 To Date

Pickaway County's 1952 Christmas Seal sale has netted a total of $3,181.33 in its first full month of operation.

Mrs. Evelyn Hafey, secretary to the county Tuberculosis and Health Association, said that amount represented donations from about 43 percent of the persons who received Christmas Seals through the mail.

Mrs. Hafey said a total of 1,865 envelopes have been returned from persons who received Seals through the mail. Of that total, 111 were returned without contribution.

In all, a total of 4,458 letters containing Seals were mailed throughout the county. There are still 2,593 to be accounted for.

SWEET ANNABELLE, 2-year-old white sow, sleepily watches some of her record breaking litter of 29 piglets, born in three stages over a six-day period in London. Future Cow Seen Carrying Own Bug Dope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tomorrow's dairy cow may do her own insect killing. So may other farm animals.

The Agriculture Department reported today it is testing a method of injecting farm animals with insecticides.

Once injected under the skin of the animal, the insecticide is carried through the bloodstream to all parts of the animal's body.

A fly or mosquito that pierces the animal's skin in an attempt to feed on its blood is dosed with the insecticide and dies.

The department said a chemical called lindane is the only insecticide found effective under the method.

The department emphasized, however, that the research has not advanced far enough to consider practical use of this method yet.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

By WILLIAM RITT

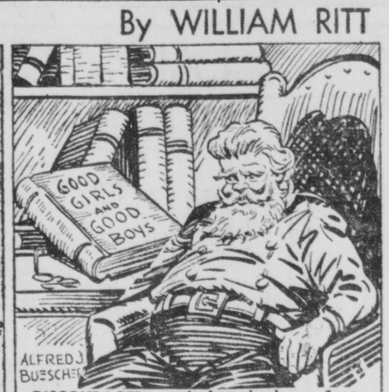

ALL IS JOY in the North Pole workshop of Santa Claus -- every toy for every good girl and good boy throughout the world is finished and ready to be distributed Christmas Eve. Happy Santa thanks his Boss Helper.

THEN SANTA, brimming with good cheer, goes out to the Reindeer Corral to feed his eight trusty steeds before they start the Big Trip. But -- what's this? -- the reindeer are not there! They have disappeared completely!

SANTA looks and looks and looks but cannot find hide or horn of any of them. He follows their tracks in the snow. They lead straight to the shore of the Great Icy Sea. The reindeer have vanished but -- why? how? where?

DISCOURAGED and heartbroken, Santa finally returns home. Without his reindeer he will not be able to bring all those wonderful toys to deserving children. It will be a sad Christmas Day indeed! (To Be Continued)

Second Charge Filed Against Oxford Man

HAMILTON, O. (AP) — Emmett Sherron, Butler County chief probation officer, today signed a warrant charging contributing to delinquency against Clyde Browning, 25, who already has been charged with manslaughter in the death of Mary Ann Fildes, 17.

Prosecutor Jackson Bosch did not say what purpose officers had in mind in filing the new charge against Browning, a paper mill employe who is married and is the father of one child.

Browning, who lives in nearby Oxford, signed a statement Sunday night admitting he took Miss Fildes on an automobile ride Thanksgiving night which ended in her death. The girl, a Hamilton High School senior, was found unconscious along a road shortly after she left a Hamilton tavern with Browning. She died several hours later.

Browning contended in his statement that he offered to take the girl home after they had struck up a flirtation in the tavern. He said she jumped from his car when she became panicky because she thought he was not taking her back to Hamilton after they had driven into the country.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Loitering on the way to and from school increases the child's physical and moral hazards.

It's good preparation for truancy and juvenile delinquency later; and when the child begins to practice loitering in the early grades, he inclines to loiter later.

Wise parents check closely enough on their young school child to discover the first instances of loitering should it occur, and nip it in the bud.

The mother of a boy, six and a half, writes: "My problem is to get him to come home promptly from school. We live eight blocks from school. Many times he taken an hour to come home. His teacher called today and said he has been late the last three mornings. He leaves home in plenty of time."

She tells of another boy a year older who "sets fires, goes into unlocked garages, steals other children's small possession and is generally in trouble."

SHE SAYS they are together on the way to school and later.

"I can understand that Phil is jealous of his little brother, three, whom everyone makes such a fuss over. . . .They fight in the car, when it can be very dangerous. They play at mealtime till we are all upset. When we go shopping they run behind the counters and racks and are nuisances.

"As punishment for his loitering, I've tried spanking firmly and consistently, making him lie down till supper, depriving him of his favorite TV show, making him sit in a chair, even taking his bedtime story away. But nothing seems to work."

Here is about how I answered her. The problem of his loitering is so complicated that punishment will hardly cure it.

Let me advise that you or the father, or both alternating, go with this boy to school and come home with him in the evening until you are sure he is responsible enough to go and come promptly.

It would be much better if you would walk. Or if it seems too far, you might drive within a block or two, park your car and walk from there.

It's silly for you parents to be upset over the children's conduct at mealtime. This could be settled in a few days if you acted decisively.

When they are together in a car, don't let them sit together. If they then continue to distract the driver, pull the car off the side, when Dad should "fan" both of them.

It would be wonderful if Dad would spend much time with this lad and develop with him a workshop. It might be well to get that other boy there to make things with your son, Dad supervising. Also attract some other boys to your home.

Jealousy could be a big factor. Work on your friends so that they pay less attention to the younger boy and more to this lad. Go on reading to him and encourage him to read to his little brother. Play up his successes and good deeds. Try to find ways of having good times with him.

Q. We give our son, 14, a budgeted allowance, but pay him for a few extra jobs to help him earn money for a special purchase he has long worked toward. Do you approve of this?

A. This plan can have high merit.

Teen Tips

How do you score on today's quiz on good looks? It's for bys as well as girls. Do you know—

That blond hair is more fragile and falls out more easily than dark hair? Avoid brushing your locks too briskly, if you're a blond, and don't rub your scalp too hard with a towel after a shampoo. Treat it gently!

That blackheads are dirt-filled pore-openings? They are caused by inadequate cleansing. The best way to deal with them is to prevent them by washing your face VERY thoroughly every morning and night with mild soap, a soft bristle complexion brush and warm water—finishing with warm and cool rinses.

That when blackheads are infected, they become pimples? A soothing, medicated overnight ointment will help to heal them quickly, toning down ugly redness to make them less noticeable.

That you can camouflage skin blemishes such as pimples during the day or for a special date with a medicated lotion tinted to match your skin? It helps heal blemishes while it helps to conceal them and helps to prevent spread of infection. Girls can use it just on pimples or all over their face as a cover-up when their skin is "broken out". Boys use it only on pimples to help make them less noticeable while healing.

That deodorants are for boys as well as girls. As a matter of fact, boys perspire more than girls do, and need them more. Use it daily after a bath or shower.

HORSE WITH SENSE

WHATEVER THE EXPLANATION may be of Lady Wonder, "the horse with sense," feats already credited to the animal have the scientific world a-flutter. Psychologists who have studied the horse and watched her perform agree he is a wonder in fact as well as in name.

The mare types out answers to questions on a specially constructed machine, using her lips to operate the keys. Observers say they have observed no trickery on the part of Mrs. Claudia Fonda, the owner.

Mental capacity of so-called dumb animals has been the subject of long study. Many have been trained to perform feats so amazing they would seem to have an inherent intelligence bordering on that credited only to the human mind.

Many a man has been saved in a tight spot by the intelligence of his horse or dog. Always this has been credited to instinct with which every animal is born, as protection against its natural enemies.

No one will deny that Lady Wonder is a remarkable animal. Past feats entitle her to that rating at least. When it comes to finding missing persons she is in the realm of the average fortune teller, palmist and reader of tea leaves, probably superior to many of her contemporaries.

At least she has horse sense, which is admitted to be a valuable qualification.

CROWNING A QUEEN

ACCORDING TO AN OLD saying, a cat may look at a queen. This, of course, is nothing more than a figure of speech, but because of the wonders of television millions will have the opportunity to see a queen crowned next June. The English have changed their attitude toward making the ceremonies available to the general public.

At first, officialdom held that a step so revolutionary would "cheapen" the ceremonies. But moved by pressure from owners of television sets they have decided to permit certain parts of the ceremony to be televised.

Under the latest arrangement, the colorful procession from Buckingham palace, the actual crowning and the homage paid will be broadcast. The anointing, the communion prayers, administration of the sacrament and other religious parts of the service will be kept off the air.

Films for rebroadcasting will be sent to many parts of the world, and will be available in the United States the next day, according to television officials.

Televising the event will impart a common touch to royalty's greatest function.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Averell Harriman once raised an exciting idea in the realm of the impoverishment of our great nation, when he said:

"I don't know of any way that one people can be rich and the rest of the world poor any more than one man in the country can be rich and the rest of the people poor."

This dictum evades the whole of human history, the developments of civilizations, the varying cultural levels of peoples, as let us say the natives of the Mariana Islands as compared with the natives of France. It ignores geography, sociology, as well as history.

What seems to bother Harriman is that he believes the United States, with only 10 percent of the population of the so-called free world, possesses over 50 percent of its wealth and productive capacity. His figures are a little wrong, but I understand what he means.

Averell, only one generation removed from a constructive builder, his father, E. H. Harriman, does not realize that what we have, we have earned. Few in the whole 300 years of Americans on this continent inherited very much. Harriman is an exception; he inherited a mighty lot. But most Americans earned their way by hard work, by building something, by inventing something, by creating something.

Our productivity was not inherited from the Indians nor was much of it imported from Europe or Asia. It was made in America by Americans. Our productivity comes out of the genius of a free people, whose greatest freedom was the right to risk their careers and prospects on their judgment.

Averell Harriman's theory is the application of levelling nations as socialism levels men down. When men speak of equality of sacrifice, they generally think of a ratio of say 9 to 1, if you look at what we contribute to the United Nations and the Korean War, or about 5 to 1 when it comes to the defense of Europe. We are only 156 million people as compared with about 240 million among the so-called free peoples in Europe; yet we have contributed well over $100 billion to Europe since 1939 and they have contributed nothing to us. They say: but they lost men in war. But so did we and we are still doing it in Korea and other places.

The exaggerated internationalism and confused sacrificial masochism on the part of men like Harriman, stimulates a reaction in this country against Europe which many Americans have come to regard as a leech upon our economy. They drive so hard against the interests of the United States, that many Americans turn not against these Americans; but against all Europeans. As a matter of fact, a feeling is growing in this country that being pro-British is only less evil than being pro-Russian because we dislike the Russians more than the British dislike us.

Common sense might be applied to international relations. We are a nation that has been generous to our friends and even to our foes. We have created a great productive capacity which in two wars and in the periods between wars, we have shared with all the world.

A New Drug Tends to Reduce Bad Effects of the Opiates

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

GREATER safety in the use of pain-killing drugs is promised by a new compound still being tried out. Taken with the opiates, it helps reduce danger to the patient, and sometimes to an expectant mother's unborn baby.

The opiate drugs are among the doctor's most powerful weapons of mercy. Many are made from opium. They include morphine, codeine, dilaudid, and many synthetic drugs, such as "Demerol." These are also the drugs that are dangerous "dope" when used illegally and not by skilled doctors and nurses.

May Be Habit-Forming

Besides easing pain, these powerful drugs have the tendency of making a person an addict, so that his body has a need for them and he is forced to take more and more.

Large doses can also prove dangerous to life. Doctors are often faced with the problem of treating patients who have taken a dangerous overdose of opiates. Dope addicts are particularly susceptible to overdose, and may die as a result.

There has been no known antidote for an overdose of these drugs. Usually, if it is too large, the victim does not survive.

A new drug, however, seems to reduce the bad effects of opiate drugs. Itself related to the morphine group, it has the chemical name of n-allyl normorphine. Its use has already saved lives.

As we all know, when a woman is in labor and expecting the delivery of her baby, opiate drugs may be given to relieve her labor pains. While welcome and helpful to the mother, these drugs sometimes have a bad effect on the baby. They can interfere with its breathing after birth, so it has less chance to survive.

The normorphine drug has recently been used to offset the opiates in women, given about ten minutes before their baby is delivered. It is found that this drug shortens the time between delivery of the face of the baby and its first gasp of air, when the mother has received opiates. The baby's breath is easier, and it has less trouble getting the oxygen it needs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. S.: How can I tell if my child has worms? What are the symptoms in such cases?

Answer: There are no definite symptoms of worms. However, the child may complain of itching around the rectum and may have periods of diarrhea.

Since there are many types of worms, it is important that the type of worm causing the disorder be discovered. The best way to discover the type of worm present is by having a stool examination. Usually either the worm or some of its eggs are found in the stool.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THE evenings were already beginning to be cool and it was now the exception rather than the rule that Emily waited in the garden for Roger's return on drill nights. On the other hand, she seldom went to bed before he came home; he generally found her in the library, reading or knitting beside the open fire. Therefore, he was surprised to find that the library, though, as usual, pleasantly lighted against his return, was empty. He turned out the lights and went upstairs, only to find their bedroom and his dressing room vacant also. He had talked with her over the telephone late that afternoon, to say that he would not be home to dinner, and she had said nothing about going out; he had almost decided that the unexpected arrival of some guest had taken her to the third floor, when Emily opened, from within, the door leading into one of the unfurnished rear rooms behind their own quarters and came toward him.

"Hello, there!" he said, going forward to give her the fond kiss which was still his habitual form of greeting. "What are you doing? Pursuing mysterious sounds which might mean there are robbers in the house?"

"No. As Mr. Cleveland said to Mrs. Cleveland, when she told him she thought that was the case, 'My dear, they are all in the Senate.' I was merely pursuing a train of thought."

"Yes? Is it a secret one? Or are you going to share it with me?"

"Of course I'm going to share it with you. I've been looking over those back rooms and wondering how you'd feel about having me fix up one of them as—well, as a sort of boudoir. After all, you have your dressing room and I haven't anything that quite corresponds to it. I've taken it into my head that I'd rather enjoy doing so. Not that it's important."

"Why, of course! I think the idea of a boudoir's quite amusing. Traditionally, the decor's rather voluptuous, isn't it? Cupids and divans and all that sort of thing? I don't believe there are many boudoirs on Beacon Hill."

"No, I don't either. And I hadn't visualized that sort. Just something rather chintzy and cozy and feminine. Perhaps I should have said an upstairs sitting room."

"Well, after all, 'what's in a name?' I know you'll make it very attractive, whatever you call it, and I do think you should have a room that's essentially yours and not ours, just as I have. I don't see why neither of us thought of it before. But since, at the moment, there isn't any furniture, chintzy or otherwise, in this future sitting room of yours, let's use our bedroom for one, shall we? I've turned out all the lights downstairs and there's something I want to talk to you about."

"You haven't had bad news, have you?" she asked quickly, as he put his arm around her and guided her toward an easy chair.

"Well, I don't suppose it could be called good. We were told at drill tonight that the National Guard's to be inducted into the Army."

"Does that mean war—war for the United States?"

"It certainly means the international situation is getting worse instead of better. With the exception of married men, the members of the First Corps Cadets are instructed to report for medical examination on their next drill night. Married men may withdraw from the Corps if they want to before the others go to Camp Edwards for intensive training, prior to being shipped off somewhere else."

"And that's what you wanted to talk to me about?"

"Yes, darling. I want to know how you feel about having me withdraw."

"How do you feel?"

"I feel terribly ashamed to do it. It isn't as if you were dependent on what I earn for support. You've got plenty to live on. And it isn't as if—well, as if we had a family."

"Of course you know I'm going to tell you to go. Of course you know I'd be ashamed too, if you didn't. You're right in saying it might be different if you had to support me or if we had a family. But since you don't since we haven't—"

There was a break in her voice. He knew it was not because she was afraid of what might happen to him; it was because she was afraid that she would never have a child. He put his arms around her, comforting her, as he had done so many times before, telling her, as he had told her so many times before, that it was too soon to give up hope—and knowing, as he did so, that his words carried no conviction, because he had given up hope himself.

The army doctor, who was making one chest examination after another, laid down his stethoscope and scribbled a few lines on the card, labeled FIELD, ROGER, that lay before him.

"You say you've been subject to bronchitis, Sergeant?"

"Well, I've had it several times—a number of times."

"You've been seriously ill with it?"

"I wouldn't have said 'seriously.' But then, of course, I'm not a physician. I wouldn't know whether that was the right word. I can ask my own doctor."

"It won't be necessary. I'm sorry to tell you that when I examined you the rales were quite pronounced."

"The rales?"

"Yes. Abnormal sounds accompanying the normal respiratory murmur."

"But those aren't serious, either, are they?"

"They can become so at any moment. You quite obviously have chronic bronchiectasis. There's also a slight heart murmur in addition to this respiratory murmur. I shan't be able to pass you."

"You mean—I can't go to Camp Edwards with the others?"

"I'm sorry," the doctor said again. But he was already glancing toward the next man. There were a great many young men to examine and it was already very late. He was extremely tired. He had put in a hard day, as had all the other specialists.

Roger had put in a hard day too. He had been working intensively on the Jerry Donovan case, in which he had his new bill of complaint almost ready to file. He knew he would put in still harder days, while he continued to work on it. No one would suggest that he was not well enough to do that.

A coldness developed between his country and England due to violent clashes over interests in Africa, and he devoted his attention to strengthening the German fleet. After the outbreak of World War I he felt his own inability to take over the supreme command, and with the defeat of the German armies and their allies, the Reichstag called upon him to abdicate, which he did, spending his last days in neutral Holland at Doorn, where he died on June 4, 1941. NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—President Truman's waspish political nature has now conquered the generous, post-election mood in which he offered complete cooperatin with President-elect Eisenhwer during the interregnum period, between Nov. 4 and the Jan. 20 inauguration. Grimly and determinedly, the outbound Democrats are building hurdles in the path of the incoming administration.

The first evidence of Truman's glumness over the election results was reflected in his peevish and grudging offer of his presidential plane to fly Eisenhower to Korea.

More flagrant proof of his sourness and pettiness came in his tart comment on the Eisenhower-MacArthur endeavors for peace or victory in Korea. Veteran White House attaches and nesspaper reporters were shocked at the Missourian's behavior.

TACTICS — Truman's personal conduct, however, would be only an item for psychiatric study, if it were not that it is matched by administration activities which appear to be designed to embarrass his successor. In both domestic and international fields, it seems that he is trying to build pitfalls for the Republicans as they assume responsibility for the first time in a generation.

Indeed, it is understood that Truman and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the unsuccessful 1952 nominee, did not part on entirely friendly terms because of the President's outline of this sort of political strategy and plans for a Democratic comeback in 1956.

As a selfless, statesmanlike and generous individual, Stevenson sincerely favors a maximum of cooperation with Eisenhower. He made that plain in the statement he issued after his recent conference with Truman. He himself had planned a trip to Korea, if he were elected. He has no use for Truman's back-room tactics for hamstringing a future President of the United States.

CONTROVERSY — Despite numerous unsettled and dangerous controversies with England, our only major ally in the cold war, Truman has worsened relations with that country by his handling of the Iranian oil controversy and his prosecution of British and American firms involved in that Middle East dispute.

Reluctantly, and only because of persistence by the defendants' lawyers in open courtroom, Attorney General McGranery now admits that it was Truman himself who personally demanded an investigation and possible conviction of the Anglo-American firms.

In disregard of State's advice, Truman insisted on this anti-trust action last June for political purposes, hoping to make a play to small business and independent interests in this field. Senator Sparkman, the vice-presidential nominee, headed that committee, and helped to force action against the oil firms.

Then, while condemning the practices of these companies in vitriolic language that Mossadegh and Stalin re-echoed in propaganda pamphlets, Truman permitted Secretary Acheson to offer a $100 million bribe to Iran, if it would come to terms with these same firms. That was the amount of the subsidy which the secretary of state promised to Mossadegh, if he would do business with the British government.

BACKFIRE—Meanwhile, Acheson had ordered American oil firms not to try to buy or market Iranian oil, and thereby get Mossadegh off a painful, economic hook. We were then supporting 10 Downing Street on this issue.

But when this inconsistent program backfired against Truman, he reversed himself and proclaimed that American interests could buy Iranian oil, if they were willing to chance damage suits in British courts. London still maintains that the disputed petroleum is British property.

Anyway, the British are furious over Washington's handling of the whole affair. It will be up to Eisenhower to placate them when Churchill visits the new occupant of the White ouse next spring.

McGRANERY'S DRIVE—Again at Truman's personal and belated urging, the normally easy-going McGranery has started a drive against Communists inside and outside the government, paroled gangsters, allegedly crooked or inefficient Department of Justice officials, and criminals who have been subject to deportation for many years. He is cleaning up a messy house he is about to vacate for another tenant.

It is a complete reversal of the Truman tolerance toward the political underworld, a presidential characteristic which was developed fully during the Kefauver and other Senate investigations. It constitutes the first exhibition of White House indignation on these subjects.

PANDORA BOX — Obviously, none of these actions can be consumated before Eisenhower takes over on Jan. 20. They will be dumped on his doorstep at a time when he will still be only a presidential apprentice. They will provide a Pandora-Truman box of troubles for the new and inexperienced attorney general, Herbert Brownell. They will put Ike on the spot!

In the controversy between public and private power, Truman has cooked up another embarrassing scheme for his successors. But the ramifications of that plot are so extensive and important that they must be told in a future column.

A fugitive from Moscow presented himself to the American authorities in West Berlin. On his person, were found a variety of pills and—an enormous portrait of Stalin, printed on rubber, folded inside his belt. "The red pills are for sinus trouble," explained the Russian. "The green ones are for arthritis, the orange for toothaches, and the purple for indigestion." "Yeah!" scoffed the examiner, "but what's that picture of Stalin for" "That," said the ex-Red with great dignity, "is for homesickness."

At Massachusetts Institute of Technology, reports Merle Miller, an English class studied "Babbitt." In the test that followed, students were asked, "Would you rather be Sinclair Lewis or George Babbitt?" Ninety per cent said they would rather be George! Another question was, "Is there anything wrong with Babbitt as a person?" One student thought he ought to have been making more money, another complained, "The trouble with Babbitt was: he didn't have any hobbies."

What Gift Does Missus Want? It Had Better Be The Right One

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The ordinary worries of the world are as nothing now to millions of American husbands face to face with the hardest problem of the year:

"What shall I get the missus for Christmas?"

No other emergency offers stern a test of a husband's real mettle.

Buying a wife a present of some kind is easy. The stores are stacked with thousands of lavish gifts. They have hired thousands of lady shopping advisers to help distracted husbands.

But the whole art of a successful family Christmas is to buy a wife exactly the gift she wants. And what is that? Just try and find out. The children subtly make their wishes known by frank and open letters to Santa Claus. But their mother won't do that.

Usually it is no task at all for a husband to find out what is on his wife's mind. He would have to put on earmuffs to keep from knowing.

But just before Christmas she clams up completely. On the question of what she would like to find under her Noel tree she plays a game of "you find out."

If you ask her bluntly, she says evasively:

"Oh, don't you bother about me. I really don't want anything."

Translated from feminine English into masculine English, this means:

"Well, dunderhead, if you come home this Christmas eve with another bottle of that cheap perfume, I'll open it and pour it all over you while you're asleep."

If she is a young bride, she will probably tell her closest girl friend what she really yearns for, and you can find out from her. But veteran wives don't play the game that simply. They confide in no one.

What can a man do? Well, I know one man who asks a ouija board, another who consults an astrologer, a third who seeks the advise of a fortune teller, and a fourth who just goes into a store blindfolded and buys the first thing he bumps into. But all of them say:

"My system doesn't really work. You better try some other one."

There are, of course, a few sound rules to follow. The first few years of marriage a wife is always glad to get things like a television set, an electric oven, or new rug. After that she warns:

"If you think my idea of a Christmas present is something to furnish this old house, you're crazy. I want something that shows you really were thinking of me as a person, not as a business partner. I need furnishing more than the house does anyway."

The surefire way out of this dilemma is to buy her an ermine coat or a yacht, and if they are the wrong size she doesn't mind going back later to exchange them herself. But these gaudy trifles are beyond the reach of the average man's purse, even in the dawn of a new Republican regime.

The only thing a fellow can do is to make the best guess he can and go ahead and buy it. In my own case I have an even tougher problem. I know what my wife would like to have, but there isn't a store in town that stocks it.

When I asked Frances what she would like for Christmas, she said:

"The only thing I really want this year, Rover, is a better husband."

Airline Finds Surprise In Honored Client

MIAMI, Fla (AP)—Delta Air Lines carried its five millionth passenger today and not without a flurry of excitement.

When ticket No. 5,000,000 was issued in Chicago to Miss Marcia Chapman, the line prepared to give full honors to "Miss Five Million," including an orchid corsage and a set of matched luggage.

But when Miss Chapman strolled in to claim her ticket, she turned out to be 4 years old and could barely be seen over the top of the ticket counter.

A doll was substituted for the orchids.

It was planned to have Mayor D. Lee Powell of Miami Beach greet Miss Five Million, but a quick switch was made and the greeter was Mary Lee Powell, 8-year-old daughter of the mayor.

A four-piece beach outfit, child's size, was substituted for the luggage. She can use that while here on vacation.

The five-millionth passenger is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. M. Chapman of Chicago.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Nom de plume will be used if requested.

EDITOR, THE HERALD:

I think it is about time that someone stands up and says a few good things about "Bugs" McCrady.

I just bought a Columbus Dispatch here in Toledo and in big print I see where he has been suspended by a fellow who had not even been born when "Bugs" was out doing good.

Some people can make mountains out of molehills, and I have learned in 50 years that those same mountains can fall in on the one who made them.

When I was a boy in Circleville, carrying The Circleville Herald for $1 a week, "Bugs" helped me out of many a jam—by his good advice—his pat on the back and to many kids of that day—He was our "Lone Ranger."

Any person that puts in as many years of service to a community as "Bugs" McCrady has must have had many good points or he would have been discharged long ago. Why don't someone make up a list of all his good deeds down through the years—also his mistakes and then place them up against the people who have been hurting an old man—and then see how his record stacks up?

I know "Bugs" is no angel—neither am I or anyone else in Circleville, unless it's my mother, but I am of the opinion it would have been more in the Spirit of Christ if the citizens of Circleville would have given "Bugs" a big heartfelt Thank You salute—instead of the $1 parking ticket that one of his patrolman gave him.

When a city, state or a community sinks so low that they fail to recognize the many, many good qualities of a person who has given his life to that city in years of good and faithful service, it's time for the City Fathers to sit down and to re-value the moral and spiritual laws and see if any good can come from Circleville.

What good can come from hurting an old man?

In closing, let me say I am proud of my Circleville: Barrere and Nickerson's Hardware; Grand-Girards Drugstore; Goldfredericks Grocery; Ben Friedmans Store; Joseph's; Sensenbrenner's; and Brunner's and Butch's Jewelry stores and many other old timers who built a good foundation on service, length of years and staying with the job.

So I think my old friend "Bugs" deserves some kind words now in his Sunset of Life.

Next Legislature Slated To Debate Tenure Proposal

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Ohio's new legislature will consider four-year terms for elected officials and state senators.

They now serve two-year terms, except the state auditor who already has four-year tenure.

The other elected state officials are governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state and treasurer.

Previous legislatures have sidetracked similar proposals. But the general assembly convening Jan. 5 might give the idea more consideration.

Advocates of the change claim it would provide more continuity for office holders and enable them to give better service. Present officials have to take time out for campaigning every year if they seek re-election, they explained.

Proponents of a convention to consider changing the state constitution offered that argument in support of their stand. The question of a convention met defeat in the Nov. 4 election.

Approval of four-year tenure by the legislature would not assure its adoption. Such a change would require amending the constitution and voters have the final say about that. Legislative approval merely would place the question on later election ballots.

The Ohio Program Commission, a permanent state planning body, decided to recommend a change to four-year terms after a study of the question. The commission accepted the recommendation from its committee on state government, headed by Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Flemming recently was named by President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to a special group to study functions of the executive branch of the federal government. He formerly was a member of the federal Civil Service Commission.

The committee recommendation did not say anything about state senators. That was added by the commission on motion of Sen. Joseph W. Bartunek of Cleveland, Democratic minority leader in the last legislature.

Neither the committee nor the commission considered proposals for four-year tenure for state representatives, who now serve two-year terms.

The committee report approved by the commission for transmission to the governor and the legislature read:

"This recommendation is designed to permit and encourage improved performance in the offices of the principal executives of the state.

"Experience here and in other states with the two-year term indicates that a newly elected official spends his first year getting acquainted with his job, and most of the next trying to get reelected.

"If he succeeds, he must still take out every other year for campaigning, and if he fails the people lose much of their investment in his training. If he decides the hazards are not worth the effort, the people are even more the losers."

The committee said elections for four-year officials should be held on even numbered years between persidential elections. The Bartunek proposal for state senators called for staggered terms so that only half the senators would stand for election every two years.

Sokolsky's

And such generosity will continue as long as we can afford it. Yet, such generosity must not cause us to lose our sense of nationality. Aid for other nations does not involve a subordination in our policies to those of other countries, as we have actually done in Korea.

During the past three decades, every propagandistic device has been employed by all sorts of so-called educational agencies to lessen the belief of our own people in nationalism, in their deep-rooted faith in their own country. Even ur children have been taught that America is less to be considered than what they call "the world."

Instead of contracts among free countries, we were told to take a global point of view. Yet, nowhere else in the world has nationalism so lost caste as in the United States. The British speak of their Commonwealth with pride and of their Queen in reverence, but our children are being taught of the globe, not of their own country.

Yet internationalism stirs no emotion of pride or satisfaction or even joy. It is a sterile doctrine, negative and without prospect.

The opposite to internationalism is not isolation; it is contractual partnership among equals for mutual aid and transactions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end Gen. Eisenhower may be bedeviled by the same dilemma which has frustrated President Truman: finding a way to end the Korean War.

It might be well for the American nervous system, now raw and twitching because of the seeming endlessness of the fighting, to adjust itself to the idea Eisenhower may not be able to produce a miracle.

After all, he promised none. He said he'd go to Korea, which he did, in search of an answer. When he returned, he didn't say he had found one although he would hardly tip off the enemy by saying much publicly, anyway.

Neither Gen. Eisenhower nor Gen MacArthur has suggested he had any intention of talking with Truman about a solution.

But when Truman clouded up and rained all over both generals he probably dampened any notion either might have had about exchanging ideas with him.

So if Eisenhower and MacArthur came to any conclusion in their get-together yesterday it is something which both men probably will keep to themselves, insofar as Truman is concerned.

If that is a correct guess then the country will have to wait until after Eisenhower's inauguration Jan. 20 for any evidence that he has found any way at all to end the Korean War.

It seems clearly established that Eisenhower will hold firm to this government's present position: The Allies will not hand over to the Communists prisoners who don't want to go back to them.

On this point the armistice talks broke down. For whatever their reason, the Communists refused to budge and the fighting has continued.

And the fighting seems destined to continue unless they yield on the prisoner of war issue or are whipped into yielding on the battlefield by a new and tremendous allied offensive.

Before such an offensive could begin, Eisenhower would have to plan for it and consider the consequences, both in starting it and if it failed.

If it should fail after the loss of many lives—and a big offensive would cost more lives, for a while, anyway, than the present kind of fighting—Eisenhower would be criticized at home.

Body Of Killer Attracts Crowd

COMANCHE, Okla. (AP) — A procession of calm, curious spectators, most of whom admitted they "just wanted to see what a real bad man looked like," filed past the open coffin of William E. (Billy) Cook late into last night despite a storm of protest from the convicted slayer's family.

Kitty Hawk Slated To Get Sonic Boom

KITTY HAWK, N. C. (AP)—Three Air Force Sabrejets were primed to slap historic Kill Devil Hill with a triple sonic boom today in ultra-modern tribute to the birthplace of aviation.

An F86 speed run across the historic site of man's first powered flight also was on the program for the ceremony celebrating the 49th anniversary of the Wright Brothers' takeoff in their flying machine at 31 miles per hour.

The sonic boom, an atmospheric phenomenon, gets its name from the deafening reports heard when a plane exceeds the speed of sound and when it drops below it. The three F86s arranged to dive from 40,000 feet so they would crash through what is called the sonic barrier—760 miles an hour at sea level—at about 20,000 feet — and then pull out.

Meanwhile, an Air Force plane will wing its way from Dayton to Kitty Hawk bearing a wreath to be placed on the Wright Brothers Memorial here.

The event will initiate the observance of the 49th anniversary of the first flight by Orville and Wilbur Wright on Dec. 17, 1903.

Modified Medical Health Insurance Plan Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman's commission on the health needs of the nation came up today with a middle-ground proposal for solving one of the country's hottest issues—how to pay the doctor's bill.

The commission proposed a 1½ billion dollar annual outlay of federal and state funds to bolster voluntary insurance plans covering the costs of hospital and medical care for all the nation's people lacking full ability to pay.

The program would be administered chiefly by the states, which would match federal money dollar-for-dollar.

It differs both from a plan unsuccessfully espoused by President Truman and a rival proposal of the American Medical Association.

President Truman, since 1945, has vainly plugged for a federal system of pre-paid sickness insurance for 125 million wage-earning Americans—to be financed by a compulsory tax on employes and employers, along the lines of the social security system.

The AMA has termed Truman's proposal "socialized medicine," and has campaigned for the extension of "voluntary" insurance plans—that is, plans which a person can purchase if he wishes.

The AMA, however, has never taken a stand as to whether it favored a federal subsidy plan.

In Chicago, the president of the AMA termed one aspect of the report "compulsory insurance."

Dr. Louis H. Bauer of Hempstead, N. Y., AMA chief, said a major recommendation in the report provides that "the federal government, through payroll deductions, would pay directly for the medical care of a large segment of the population. This is compulsory health insurance."

The AMA said it would withhold comment on the full report pending "careful study" by a four man committee.

The commission, appointed in November of 1951 to assess the nation's health needs, and to make recommendations as it saw fit, collected some two million words of testimony from experts in various fields during hearings held in Washington—and close to another million words in hearings throughout the country.

One of its main findings was that "despite superior medical service and low death rates, Americans are not enjoying as good health as might be expected."

One prime reason, the commission said in its report to Truman, was that people in low income groups can't afford adequate medical care—even on present pre-payment plans.

The commission called for:

1. More doctors, nurses and other health personnel. The commission estimates there may be a shortage of anywhere from 22,000 to 45,000 doctors by 1960.
2. More hospitals.
3. Increased medical research.
4. Support of industrial health and of migratory workers.

The commission estimated the federal government's share of such a program would total $1,016,000,000 annually, including the 750 million dollars for grants to states in the voluntary pre-payment plan. This would double federal health outlays.

A spokesman for the commission told a reporter that with the exception of $100 million proposed for aid to medical schools, $20 million for medical research and $10 million for federal aid in organizing medical services on a regional basis, all other funds would be on a matching basis with the states.

That is, the separate states would be expected to ante up a sum equalizing the amount placed in the kitty by the federal government, but with richer states paying more than poorer ones.

On the pre-payment of medical care, the commission proposed that direct handling of the plan would be on a local basis, with federal aid money being filtered down through the states, but with the federal government checking up on the qualifications of proposed plans through a new governmental department of health and security.

The commission was headed by Dr. Paul Magnuson of Chicago and included seven doctors from university staffs, representatives of hospitals and nurses, consumers organizations, farmers, labor and the public.

Commission officials told a reporter the prepayment insurance plan would be aimed primarily at helping people with annual incomes of under $3,000.

But it would also provide full costs for people having no income and give some aid to those people making more than $3,000 a year but still unable to pay the full cost themselves, officials said.

In general, here's how the plan would work:

Complete medical and hospital service and some dental service would be provided for all people who wanted it on a prepaid basis, whether they paid the insurance premiums themselves or got some or all financial help from the federal-state plan.

Regional authorities would be set up in the various states for the direct operation of the plans, but the insurance plans would be subject to approval by state and federal authorities. Doctors would not be in the majority on regional authority boards.

Ohio Solon Raps Delays On Dillon Dam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Secrest (D-Ohio) says preliminary work done on the Dillon Dam project in Ohio is being washed away while the dam itself remains incomplete.

Deep gullies and erosion are eating at a roadbed built at a cost of several million dollars for relocation of a railroad prior to construction of the dam, he said. He showed Budget Bureau officials pictures of the damage Wednesday.

Secrest conferred with the officials in a further effort to get money for the Dillon Dam on the Licking River included in the budget that will go to Congress next month.

The Army Engineers have asked that the Dillon Dam be provided for. The project would cost about $25,644,000. It is one-third finished.

Secrest contends that work already done on the project will be wasted unless Congress provides money to bring it nearer completion.

The roadbed has been graded, but rail must be put down and bridges constructed before it can be turned over to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Moore Wins Light-Heavy Boxing Crown

Unanimous Decision Given St. Louisan Over Joe Maxim

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Able Archie Moore, wearing his new light heavyweight crown at a jaunty tilt, now hurls a promise that carries a challenge to other hopefuls in his 175-pound class:

"I'm going to put some life into the division. Any contender who deserves a chance will get it from me."

That was one of the first statements made by the 36-year-old St. Louis Negro Wednesday night as the new world light-heavy king. Only minutes before he had won an unanimous decision over Joey Maxim, a thoroughly beaten but astoundingly game ex-champion.

There wasn't much doubt about who would be wearing the crown by the time the battering fists of Moore had mauled Joey for seven rounds.

Before the bout, Moore, who weighed 172½ to Maxim's 174½, was an 8-to-5 favorite, with the odds shifting to 12-to-5 at fight time.

JUDGE FRED Connell gave it to Moore, 87-63, and Judge Howard Hess put it 82-68. Referee Harry Kessler alone had it surprisingly close. Repeatedly warning Moore to keep his punches up, but penalizing him only once, Kessler scored the fight 76-74. The fourth round was taken from Moore for a low blow.

The crowd of 12,610 fans that flocked to the arena—and paid a gross gate of $89,487 for a new St. Louis record—also shouted approval of the decision.

Particularly in the 10th did Moore assert his punching superiority. He leaped out of a crouch and landed a smashing right that sent the 30-year-old Maxim reeling into the ropes. Only Joe's ability to tie up his opponent kept him from suffering the second knockout of his 12-year career.

AT THE END Maxim was bloody, but unbowed.

The fight was nationally telecast, with only the St. Louis area blacked out, and broadcast.

Badger Pilot Seeks Curb To Trojan Power

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Wisconsin's big problem, said Coach Ivy Williamson today as he prayed for clearing skies and a dry field for the start of the Badger practice for the Rose Bowl, is to devise means of "moving against the tremendous defense" of Southern California's Trojans.

Wisconsin's first Rose Bowl team arrived on the scene Wednesday, received a warm welcome from Tournament of Roses officials, spent a quiet night and today settled down to workouts leading up to the New Year's date with the Trojans.

"It's been a long struggle to get here," Williamson told Badger alumni, local dignitaries and his players at a reception in the ballroom of their quarters at the Huntington Hotel. "I know we have a terrific job ahead of us. I hope we can carry on in traditional Big Ten fashion."

Kiner's $90,000 Pay To Be Cut

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph Kiner of the Pirates, not Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the highest salaried player in 1952, it is now revealed. The major leagues homerun king drew $90,000 last year, $10,000 more than Musial earned.

The $90,000 figure came to light when a Pirate spokesman, discussing the club, remarked:

"Kiner wasn't a $90,000 ball player last year and I think he knows it as well as we do. I have a hunch he's prepared to take a cut but I don't know whether he'll accept the full 25 per cent."

Fordham Seen Quitting As Football Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Announcement that Fordham is considering abandonment of intercollegiate football re-emphasized today the depths to which the sport has fallen in the metropolitan New York area.

New York University, which reached great heights under John F. (Chuck) Meehan back in the roaring '20s, now plays a second-rate schedule. Columbia is one of the door mats of the Ivy League. Fordham is talking de-emphasis and possible resignation.

The best record of these three main New York teams during the last season was two victories, and all shared that.

Fordham won 2, lost 5 and tied 1 game. NYU had a 2-5-1 record also while Columbia finished with an even poorer over-all mark of 2-6-1. All together, they won 6, lost 16, tied 3.

The Rev. Vincent Hart, director of university development, revealed Tuesday that Fordham lost approximately $50,000 last season and has a $200,000 deficit for a seven-year priod.

He said the university is surveying its football program to decide on one of three courses:

1. To continue the present setup.
2. Drop football.
3. Adopt a middle course of de-emphasis on a "back to the campus" plan.

Cold Weather Seen Hurting Rams In Tilt

DETROIT (AP)—Will the defending champions Los Angeles Rams, who played in 101 degree heat last Sunday, freeze up in the 25-degree chill of Detroit's Briggs Stadium next Sunday?

You'll hear that question among fans talking about the forthcoming tie-breaking, post - season playoff game between the Rams and the Detroit Lions for the National Conference title in the National Football League.

Coach Hampton Pool of the Rams, who can be expected to argue thus for psychological reasons, thinks the cold weather will hurt the Rams.

Coach Buddy Parker of the Lions, who should be expected to argue the other way, also thinks the cold weather will hurt the Rams.

Bookmakers around Detroit, especially those who remember how the Rams lost the NFL title two years ago in a similar sudden change of temperature, think the cold weather may hurt the Rams.

The bookies have made the Lions one point favorites. That doesn't mean too much; it's the nearest thing to an even choice.

Olson And Hayes Set For Match

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fans may well be watching the next middleweight champion of the world when Carl Bobo) Olson of Honolulu boxes Norman Hayes of Boston in a 10 rounder here tonight.

Olson strengthened his position as No 1 challenger by flattening highly rated Lee Sala of Pittsburgh in two rounds here a month ago. Last year, he lost a close 15 round decision to champion Sugar Ray Robinson, who is reported about ready to retire.

Jimmy Carter Held To Draw

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Freddy (Babe) Herman of Los Angeles fought world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter to an unpopular draw in a 10-round non-title fight here Tuesday night.

Referee John Bassanelli and Judge Billy Burke called the fight a draw, overruling Judge Fred Bottaro who gave the bout to Herman, a decided underdog.

Indian Chiefs To Powwow On Ryan Future

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians hold an unscheduled contest in the winter today, but it is in the office, not on the field.

This is the day the team's stockholders—the people who own the team—choose up sides on the quarrel between President Ellis Ryan and his other officers over how to run the baseball club.

Most of the club's stockholders were to meet in Municipal Stadium, to get a first hand look at Ryan's three-year record.

The special meeting was called by opponents of Ryan in the hope tha a showdown vote would result in a new board of directors strong enough to fire him from his job.

Donald W. Hornbeck, the club's secretary and a director, is the spokesman for this group. He thinks this can be done.

Ryan and the five directors supporting him believe they wield enough support for a vote of confidence.

On the other hand, a number of people on both sides said the vote may be so close that nothing will be decided finally today.

In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our son John F. Groce who died Dec. 18, 1947.

Five years has passed since that sad day the one we loved was called away what would we give to clasp his hand his happy face to see, to hear his voice and see him smile that meant so much to us; the flowers we placed upon his grave may wither and decay but the love for him who sleeps beneath will never fade away.

Sadly missed

German Sportsmen Rip Iron Curtain

FRANKFURT (AP) — German sportsmen have ripped a hole in the Iron Curtain and agreed to resume competition between the Soviet Zone and West Germany.

Relations were broken off last September because Eastern authorities refused to guarantee sports contests would not be used for political purposes. Last week end sports officials from both sections met in a West Berlin hotel and agreed to avoid all politics.

Otto Graham's Record Both Good And Bad

CLEVELAND (AP)—Look at quarterback Otto Graham's 1952 passing record one way, and it's his best in seven years with the Cleveland Browns. Look at it another way and it's his worst.

Automatic Otto, one-time Northwestern University All - America, completed 181 passes for 2,816 yards in 12 National Football League games this fall. That was 23 throws and 509 yards better than the next best pro mark, made by Pittsburgh's Jim Finks.

Only the great Sammy Baugh of Washington ever gained more yardage on his arm in a single NFL campaign—2,938 in 1947.

But look at it the other way, and the 31-year-old off-season insurance salesman had his worst year in percentage of passes completed and enemy interceptions.

For the first time in seven seasons, Otto failed to complete at least half of his throws. He tried 364, and needed just one more completion to raise a 49.7 per cent record set this Fall.

Before this season, his average was 55.5 per cent for six years.

Liddle Is Best Association Hurler

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw Don Liddle of Milwaukee's champion Brewers was the hottest American Association pitcher of the 1952 season, according to official statistics released today.

Backed by the league's best fielding—a high .975 percentage compiled by Brewer defenders—Liddle led all other pitchers in won-and-lost percentage and in earned run average. His won-lost figure of .810 was based on 17 victories in 21 decisions. In appearing in a total 34 games and pitching 197 innings, Liddle compiled an earned run average of 2.70.

Youth Sentenced

Fire Chief Wise Issues Warning On Fires During Holidays

Pails Of Water, Sand Urged For Protection

Precautions Offered In Hope They Can Be Saved, Posted

Fire Chief Talmer Wise has reminded Circleville residents a bit of carelessness can turn Christmas joy into grim tragedy within a matter of minutes

"We always issue these warnings just before Christmas and the New Year's celebrations," he said, "but none of us can read them too often.

"Dangers are increased at this time of year in many ways, and a fire can quickly change one of the happiest days into one of the saddest."

As an all-around precaution against fire in local homes, Wise suggested at least one pail of water and sand be set aside where it could easily be reached in emergency.

"It won't be nearly as good as having a fire extinguisher, of course, but it will be fairly good protection nevertheless," he said. "No matter how fast a fire department works, the damage—and deaths—can be caused before it's possible to reach the scene."

WISE CALLED particular attention to small heating stoves, often the rallying point on Christmas Eve or early Christmas morning for both young and old, with the joys of the day on their mind and not too much care in their hearts.

"It's often a family tradition to stand around in night-clothing for a few minutes while the children get their big surprise on Christmas morning," the chief pointed out. "In some homes it's been sort of a routine that's sacred even before anybody thinks of dressing and having breakfast.

"It's a tragic fact that some of the nation's worst Christmas fires begin just at that time—when everybody's happy and excited and not too careful about brushing close to a stove."

Such precautions should also be routine through all the Winter months he added, along with care against any leaking gas fumes.

Emphasizing that December through March is the heaviest fire loss period of the year, Wise offered "something a little different this year for those who know the value of precautions and how heart-breaking it can be to remember them too late." He continued:

"People everywhere these days read lists of do's and don'ts to guard against fires, and almost as fast as they read them they forget them. Most people at this particular time have only one thing in mind—and that's Christmas only a few days off.

"THAT'S WHY I'm giving four separate reminder lists, hoping that folks—even if they can't take time to read them immediately — will clip them from The Herald and tack or tape each in a spot where it may serve its purpose. In that way too, they'll serve as reminders even after the Christmas excitement is over."

For around the Christmas tree—

1. If you haven't alrady set up your tree, the longer you can wait before Christmas the better. It's safest to stand trees in water or wet sand.

2. State law forbids the sale of decorations that are not flameproof. Be careful of any homemade decorations that don't have this protection.

3. Avoid smoking around the tree. And in other parts of the house provide plenty of ashtrays. Check before leaving the house or retiring to see that no cigarettes or cigars are left burning.

4. Remove gift wrappings promptly, so that wrapping paper doesn't collect in a corner of the room.

5. USE ONLY electrical lights bearing the UL label of the Underwriters Laboratories. And don't leave the tree lights burning when you go out of the house—a quite common but dangerous habit to "show off the home."

6. When the needles begin falling from the tree, play safe and take it down.

7. Try to discourage toys operated by gasoline or alcohol.

For storekeepers—

1. Several times a day, dispose of cartons and waste materials that accumulate from unpacking goods.

2. Clear back rooms and cellars of such materials each day.

3. Allow smoking only under controlled conditions.

4. Keep aisles and exits clear.

5. Drill store clerks in the use of fire extinguishers and other equipment for the control of small fires.

6. FOR DECORATION, use nonflamable or at least slow-burning materials, and keep them away from electric light bulbs.

7. Call in qualified electricians for new wiring of extensions; have the work inspected.

8. Check fuses; be sure each one is properly sized for the circuit it protects.

For care of furnace and fireplace—

1. Never overwork or "force" a furnace or heater that is giving insufficient heat.

2. Never try to "speed up" a fire by using gasoline or kerosne.

3. Keep a metal screen in front of a burning fireplace.

4. Use care in handling hot ashes. Always deposit them in a metal container equipped with cover (never a wooden or cardboard container).

5. Keep wood, coal and flammable liquids away from furnace, the furnace room free of trash.

6. Safely dispose of trash.

FOR THOSE planning parties—

1. Don't locate the Christmas tree near any stairway which would provide a draft.

2. The tree should not block a door or any exits.

3. An inspection of the tree should be made by someone in authority to determine whether the tree has dried out ot the point that it should be removed.

4. Be sure plenty of ashtrays are provided for smokers. Don't allow smoking near the Christmas tree.

5. Be sure that all decorations throughout the room have been flameproofed.

6. Avoid using net or gauze-like fabrics for dresses, costumes or children's clothes. Loosely woven fabrics easily catch fire.

7. If loosely woven costumes have to be worn, they should be flameproofed with the following solution: mix 9 ounces of borax and 4 ounces of boric acid in a gallon of water. Dip the fabric into this solution, wring by hand, then hang to dry. This flameproofing method must be repeated after each laundering of the garment.

NATO CUTS RIDGWAY'S BUDGET

More Civilian Goods Coming

U. S. Loosens Steel Supplies

Manufacturers Hiking Goals With New Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Makers of civilian goods raised their production goals for the second quarter of 1953 today, on the basis of government assurance they will have more steel than at any time since the Korean war began.

The Defense Production Administration (DPA) has authorized them to use steel up to 70 per cent of pre-Korea rate.

This is about 16 per cent more than for the third quarter of 1952, the previous high since the government began rationing scarce materials to assure adequate supplies for defense.

Acting DPA Chief Ralph Trigg said the bigger allotments in the second quarter should permit:

Increased construction of small schools, hospitals, power and transportation facilities and public works; the highest rate of highway construction ever; an output of 9,000 freight cars a month, the highest since materials were rationed; and new housing construction at the rate of one million units a year.

HE SAID STEEL provided should allow production of 1¼ million passenger automobiles and 315,000 trucks. This compares with steel provided to build only 700,000 cars in the first quarter of the new year.

The companies previously had been authorized to produce as many as 1½ million autos if they can obtain steel from abroad or through other sources.

Aluminum producers weighed, meanwhile, a conditional government offer for a ceiling price increase of one-half cent a pound on primary aluminum pig and ingot and 4 per cent on fabricated aluminum products.

Defense Mobilizer Henry Fowler tied the proposed increase to a provision that the Big Three producers agree to certain changes in their contracts with the U. S.

Among them would be the deletion of the right of the government or the companies to cancel contracts for aluminum before they run their full five years.

Fowler's proposal was made in identical letters to the Aluminum Company of America, the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and the Reynolds Metals Company.

The companies got a bigger increase last August, but they said it wasn't enough to meet their expansion programs and asked Fowler for another hike.

Siamese Twins Are Separated By Chicago Surgery Team

CHICAGO (AP)—In a history-making operation, surgeons Wednesday completed the separation of 15-month-old Siamese twin boys who were joined at the heads.

The twins, several hours after the 12 hour and 40 minute operation, were reported in critical condition. This was regarded as natural for such dangerous and lengthy surgery.

The separation was the first successful one of its kind in medical history. In two previous attempts to cut apart babies joined at the heads, the patients died.

No member of the medical team which participated in the operation would predict if the infant twins will be able to recover. Earlier doctors said the odds were against the twins survival from the start but that the boys were "unbelievably hearty."

"The ultimate outcome of the operation is as yet unknown," said a spokesman for the Research and Educational Hospitals of the University of Illinois, where the operation was performed.

Stanley Olson, dean of the university's College of Medicine, said the twins still had a "long way to go" before their survival is assured.

The most expert kind of post-operative and nursing care will be needed, Olson said, as the babies had been subjected to intense shock and had lost considerable blood.

Surgeons watched over the twins throughout the night. They were taken from the operating room at 8:30 p. m. to the pediatric ward of the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, a university unit, and placed in separate cribs.

The babies, their heads swathed in bandages, were placed under oxygen tents. A university spokesman said physicians plan to resume surgery today on the tiny patients, Roger Lee and Rodney Dee Brodie of Moline, Ill.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie, were in the hospital during the operation.

"It sure looks good to see them apart," said Brodie, a farmer and meat cutter. He and his wife, a former nurse, are the parents of four other children, all normal.

Work On New Chimney Is Begun For City's Huge Christmas Gift

Work on a new chimney for Circleville's Christmas "present" was begun Thursday afternoon as more specific materials and cash donations were awaited.

The "present" is a new four-room house being constructed of donated materials and labor for Montford (the Mole) Pollock and his family.

The Pollocks were left homeless eight days ago when an early morning fire completely destroyed their house, located behind the ice plant on Island Road.

Since that time, sufficient materials and elbow grease have been donated by local business places and individuals to virtually insure the Pollocks of enjoying Christmas in their own home on the site of the burned home.

WITH CASH gifts and material donations, enough supplies are now believed to be on hand to finish construction of the exterior of the bungalow by the first of next week —Christmas week.

But yet needed are material or cash to provide a floor underlay—either wood or fibre—and for inside panelling.

Workmen are expected to be at the site Saturday and Sunday under direction of Karl Smith, city construction firm operator who is supervising the project.

Thursday's brick-laying project on the chimney was being done by Firemen Fred Howell and Bernard Wolfe, instrumental in laying the cement block foundation for the dwelling.

Workmen Saturday and Sunday are to complete the sheathing, the roof superstructure and, if materials are available, the flooring.

MORE FUNDS are expected to be added to the project when Circleville American Legion's drum and bugle corps makes its final tour for Christmas toys Thursday night.

Persons who have no toys to offer will be asked by the corps whether they might not contribute to the house project.

Individual donations toward the project here Wednesday amounted to another $35 in cash. List of donors will be announced as soon as the building program is completed.

Drunk Flying Charge Filed Against Pilot

WASHINGTON C. H. (AP)—Charges of reckless and drunk flying were filed today against a Washington C. H. aerial photographer, whose rented airplane was chased over Southwestern Ohio by state highway patrolmen Wednesday night.

William Thompson, 27, was held in the Fayette County jail under $500 bond, Sheriff Orland Hayes reported.

Patrolman M. E. Brickles gave this account of the chase:

At 11:30 a. m. Wednesday Thompson and another man rented an airplane at the airport at Sabina. That night airport officials reported the plane overdue.

At 9:30 p. m. the Lunken Airport near Cincinnati called the patrol to say that the missing plane had just taken off and that the pilot apparently had been drinking.

The patrol dispatched a car to Sabina. It arrived minutes after residents of the area reported a plane buzzed the airport there and then flew off in the direction of Washington C. H.

Police here reported almost two dozen calls of a plane without lights buzzing the city. Then came a call saying a plane had knocked off a chimney. Another reported a high tension wire was clipped by the plane.

Twenty minutes later the plane landed in a field near the Armco Co. plant here. State patrolmen searched the area and finally located Thompson. He was injured slightly and was taken to Fayette County Hospital.

Ohio Teacher Pay Above Average

The Ohio Educational Association said a research study showed the average teacher in Ohio is making $3,642, compared with the national average of $3,405. This is a boost of $245 over last year.

State Takes Bypass Map Loaned City

Both groups in the Route 23 controversy pondered Thursday over possible meaning of a minor detail in the slow-moving picture.

The series of aerial photographs were loaned to the city some time ago when local property owners asked for a "more definite" idea as to location of the bypass proposed by the state.

Since that time Gerhardt has been making an effort, under direction of City Council, to sound out property owner sentiment on a proposed change in the corporation limits. It was regarded as the first major step toward a decision on the bypass issue here.

GERHARDT, shortly after receiving Council's instructions, contacted a number of the property owners involved but apparently only one has registered a final decision on the city-limit question.

Container Corp. replied by letter that the bypass along the route now suggested could not be approved by the firm.

Some of the delay in responding to Gerhardt's query apparently is based on belief the location of the bypass still hasn't been pinpointed sufficiently. The solicitor said he was asked to have the location "pinned down" closer than it has been.

The Highways Department employe who took away the aerial map said he was acting for Richard Ricketts, an official of the highways branch's engineering section.

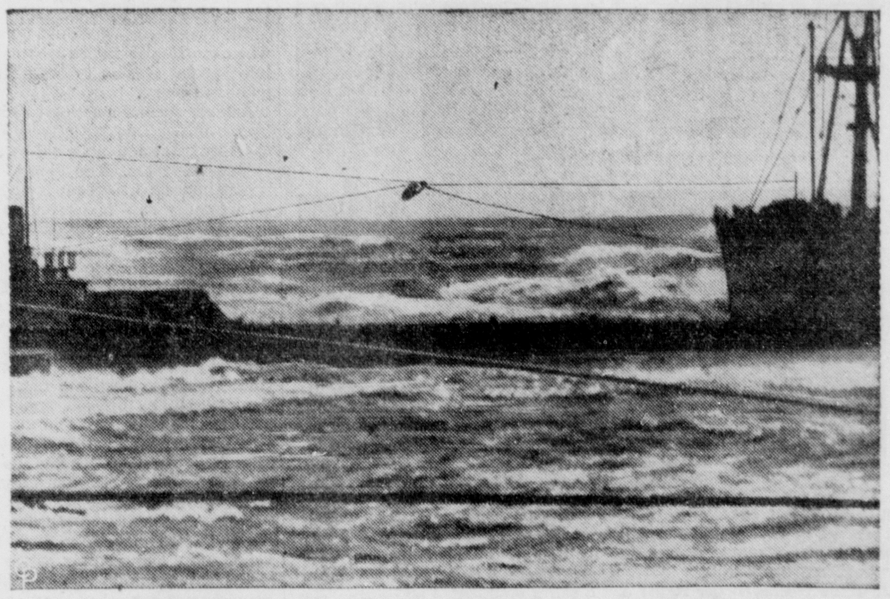

Asked if the map is needed for some other purpose in this area, the employe said:

"We're planning for Route 23 both north and south of Circleville—up to the city limits, that is. And of course we're waiting to see what's decided here on the bypass question."

Cold Air Blast Heads For Ohio

The cold air centered over the North-Central states. It was 10 below zero early today in Bemidji, Minn., and -4 in Jamestown, N. D. The icy air moved southward and eastward north of the Ohio River, with temperatures below freezing in most areas.

RIDING A FEW FEET ABOVE storm-tossed waters off Leghorn, Italy, an American seaman is transported by breeches buoy from the stern section of the broken U. S. Navy supply ship Grommet Reefer to a rescue craft standing off shore. All 40 seamen aboard the ship were carried to safety after the freighter split in two on a reef. Helicopters from the carriers Midway and Leyte helped bring the bulk of the stranded crewmen to safety. The supply vessel was carrying seven tons of Christmas turkeys for GIs in Austria and Italy when winds of gale force piled it on the offshore rocks.

City Schools Close Tuesday

Circleville schools, originally announced to be dismissing Wednesday for their annual Christmas vacations, will dismiss instead at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Wayne and Washington Township schools, with high school youngsters attending Circleville high school, will follow the same schedule.

Top Yankee Ace Collects His Ninth Mig

SEOUL (AP) — America's hottest Sabrejet ace shot down another Communist Mig fighter and a second Mig was damaged in air battles high over North Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported.

Lt. James F. Low of Sausalito, Calif., credited with his ninth Mig, said it was the roughest dogfight he has had in Korea.

The damaged Mig was credited to Maj. Richard L. Ayersman of Sacramento, Calif., bringing his score to three Migs destroyed and three damaged.

Ground action was light.

The Air Force reported its fighter-bombers smashed a large Communist troop concentration area about 20 miles below the North Korean capital, Yyongyang.

The Air Force said planes from four wings showered explosives on the Reds, destroying more than 70 buildings and damaging 30.

Low, who has bagged three Migs since returning from the U. S., praised the flying ability of the pilot whose Mig he shot down.

"We went through everything in the book and that pilot really knew his stuff," he said. "It was the roughest fight I ever had."

Tito's Break With Vatican Brings Fresh West Worry

The American government's concern with the situation arises from its desire, as a matter of major policy, to establish the closest political and military cooperation among all the European countries, in and out of the North Atlantic Alliance, in the interest of checking Soviet power.

Tito's diplomatic break with the Vatican Wednesday probably will make it more difficult to achieve this aim in two regards: (1) tying Yugoslavia closer to the Western European nations, and (2) trying to solve the Italian-Yugoslav dispute over Trieste.

Furthermore, some officials think there may be difficulties with Congress, where the anti-Soviet Communist government of Yugoslavia has always been regarded with skepticism.

TITO BROKE with Russia in mid-1948. Since that time the U. S has tightened its relations with him and provided substantial military and economic assistance.

During the fiscal year which ended last June 30 the U. S., Britain and France together provided Tito with $120 million. This year their help totals $99 million. In both years the American share has been $78 million.

The Truman administration has regarded Yugoslavia as a great asset to the West because (1) it is a living example of the ability of a satellite nation to brake with Moscow and survive, and (2) Tito's 30-odd divisions, though they have been badly in need of modernization, are a valuable addition to anti-Soviet strength.

Efforts to get along with Tito have been marked by frequent difficulties. He has repeatedly made clear he is a doctrinaire Communist with no interest in adopting democratic ways.

Morover, he has had a long feud with the Roman Catholic church, culminated Wednesday by the diplomatic break.

Continuance Of President's Power Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House advisory group recommended today that Congress make permanent the President's power to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

The President now has authority, which expires March 31, to put into effect specific reorganization plans unless they are vetoed by either branch of Congress with a definite time limit.

The President's Advisory Committee on Management termed this arrangement "the greatest single enabling step toward management improvement in the federal government in this generation."

The 13-member advisory group, set up three years ago, is headed by Thomas A. Morgan, board chairman of the Sperry Gyroscope Company. In its final report to President Truman, the committee said that during the last fiscal year the government realized savings of some $36 million as a result of suggestions from employes.

The committee said it believed that the government, with some 1,600,000 civilian employes and another 3,600,000 men and women in uniform, cannot be run like private business. The committee said that "no business organization has its governing authority so divided and diffused and, consequently, its policy and program objectives so difficult of interpretation by its managerial officials."

Defense Fund For '53 Set At $239 Million

SHAPE Chief Believes $428 Million To Be Security 'Minimum'

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty nations agreed today to spend $239,600,000 in 1953 for airports and other solid defenses against Soviet aggression.

This is just about half the $428 million which Gen. Matthw B. Ridgway, supreme commander in Europe, had outlined as the "minimum" to provide security.

Rene Pleven, French defense minister, said the reduced figure was agreed upon by the NATO Council today, after a four-day debate. The money voted will provide enough to begin work on airports and other long term projects as soon as weather permits.

Decision on the final figure was taken a few hours before the projected conclusion of the meeting, called to get the 14 member nations to vote all the money they could afford without going broke.

THE STATESMEN met in the shadow of hard times over Europe, an economic slowdown which led them to take what their military advisers believe to be calculated risks. Among them were:

1. A broad decision to scale down army, air force and naval goals for the coming year. The advisers had wanted the equivalent of 75 standard size divisions under arms by the end of 1953; now they will have to settle for about 60.

2. An attempt to modernize gradually their weapons over the next few years, slowly getting rid of out-dated planes, guns and tanks and concentrating also on guided missiles and atomic bombs.

3. A cut, to at least half, of the $428 million program for 1953 of building bases, roads, airports, and harbor installations.

The Council also decided to meet here again next Spring. No date. was fixed.

3 County Tax Abstracts OKd

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Board of Tax Appeals today announced approval of the 1952 real property tax abstracts for Warren, Clinton and Fayette Counties.

Warren County real property is valued at $47,835,470, an increase of aboout 10 million dollars, or 26 per cent, over 1951.

The Clinton County valuation increased 20 per cent to $38,018,630.

Fayette County showed a 9 per cent increase to $37,800,990. The board now has approved tax abstracts for 63 counties under the state's equalization program. The program is designed to standardize methods of assessment and equalize distribution of state money to the counties.

Church Donations Hiked By 10 Pct.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Council of Churches reported Wednesday 47 Protestant and Eastern orthodox churches in the United States contributed $1,286,633,160 for all purposes in the last year.

The report as made by Dr. T. K. Thompson, executive secretary of the council's joint Department of Stewardship and Benevolence. The contributions were 10.3 per cent greater than in the previous year.

Sailor Spends 28 Cold Hours In Swamp Before His Rescue

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A sailor who clung to mangrove bushes in Angel Fish Creek 20 miles south of Miami for more than 28 hours during some of Florida's coldest weather was reported in "satisfactory" condition in Veterans Hospital today.

Fred Tyzzer Jr., released from a hospital only two weeks ago with badly burned hand, survived a night of 35-40 degree cold stripped to his undershorts.

The 38-year-old Navy veteran watched while a Coast Guard PBY and a helicopter flew overhead in search for him, but couldn't attract their attention. Finally, the Coast Guard abandoned the search presumed he had drowned.

Tyzzer lost his balance and fell from the tugboat Logan about 11 a. m. Tuesday between Cape Florida and Cutter Bank. He was rescued late Wednesday by Capt. Cleveland Knowles aboard his fishing vessel.

"BECAUSE of the cold weather, I had plenty of clothes on when I fell off the boat," Tyzzer said. "Thanks to my training as a senior Red Cross life saver, was able to peel off my shoes, two pairs of socks, two pairs of pants, sweater and jacket."

Capt. George Baron, skipper of the tugboat didn't notice that his only crewman had disappeared until half an hour later.

Tyzzer watched the tug until it moved out of sight, then shed his clothing and swam three or four miles to the mangrove swamp. All night long he buried his face in the mangrove roots to ward off the chill northwest wind.

Knowles, who has fished the area for 10 years, was headed for port when he saw Tyzzer waving a mangrove twig.

Tyzzer estimated he reached the swampy, mangrove-studded shore about 1 p. m. He waved vainly at passing boats and the helicopter.

He waded through knee - deep mud toward Angel Fish Creek, which divides Key Largo, but no boats came up the channel before nightfall. Again Wednesday he waved at boats and plans, but none saw him.

"He was weak and in shock but seemed in pretty fair shape," Knowles said. "We put some clothes on him and fed him some coffee and cup cakes. He wouldn't eat much—said he was afraid it might give him cramps."

Sawyer Says Too Many U. S. Aides Used In West Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secrtary of Commerce Sawyer says the United States has "too many people and too many agencies doing too many things" in Western Europe, at the cost of waste and confusion.

This was the meat of a hard-swinging attack on U. S. aid administration in Europe which Sawyer, just back from a 10-country study in Europe, inserted into a report to President Truman.

Sawyer said personnel abroad can be cut sharply, and some agencies abolished.

He said he found Europe in better economic shape than he expected, and that "tremendous recovery" has taken place in countries receiving U. S. aid.

Europe can march on to prosperity, he said, if it does not lose faith in itself.

Sawyer undertook the study, ended early this month, at Truman's request. He took with him finance and trade officials from the Treasury and Commerce Department, and two businessmen. All joined him, he said, in the conclusions set forth in the report.

Sawyer did not disagree with the idea of extending the roughly $50 billion in aid Western Europe has received since the war. He said it was "indispensable to the rebuilding of war-damaged economies and to stopping the spread of communism."

But he took vigorous exception to the administrative structure built up to hand out money, goods and advice. Furthermore, he said, the time has come for the U. S. to halt direct aid—with some exception so such a military aid and reduced economic help to Italy and Greece—in favor of long-term help in the form of private investment and increased trade.

Most Europeans he talked to, Sawyer indicated, agreed that the time has come for "trade, not aid." He added bluntly:

"This situation does not require another study employing a large staff. Nor is the solution the creation of one new overall permanent department whose only assignment would be to give away Uncle Sam's money or handle purely foreign economic affairs."

Ike Studying Peace Views Given In MacArthur Parley

NEW YORK (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower cloaked in deep secrecy today the Korean war and world peace views outlined to him by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Aides said Eisenhower was studying ideas MacArthur set forth at their history-making conference Wednesday, but they added that no detailed public account of what was discussed can be expected.

After the conference in the Manhattan home of John Foster Dulles, secretary of state-designate, the two five-star generals told newsmen they had discussed the problem of winning peaec in Korea and the rest of the world.

The luncheon get-together at Dulles' four-story town house resulted from a MacArthur speech here Dec 5. He said then there is "a clear and definite solution to the Korean conflict."

When Wednesday's meeting was over, neither Eisenhower nor MacArthur said whether they were in agreement on a course to follow in Korea. Neither mentioned the "clear and definite solution" which MacArthur had talked about.

AN EISENHOWER aide said privately there was no doubt that MacArthur had set forth a plan.

"After all," said the aide, "that was the whole purpose of the meeting."

The conference started a few minutes after 1 p. m., and Eisenhower and MacArthur left Dulles' home 2 hours and 15 minutes later.

The President-elect told reporters after the meeting:

"Our general topic of conversation was peace. We discussed the possibility of peace in Korea with particular reference to the world situation, in which, of course, such Korean peace would have to be determined."

MacArthur said he had "a very pleasant reunion with the President-elect," and remarked it was the first time they had seen each other in nearly six years.

MacArthur also said the meeting marked "resumption of friendship and comradeship of 35 years."

MacArthur supported Sen. Robert A. Taft for the GOP presidential nomination. He gave no public backing to Eisenhower during the campaign.

In his Dec. 5 speech, however, he spoke kindly of Eisenhower. He appealed for support of the new administration.

Prime Minister Churchill of Britain in Washington.

Meanwhile, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Britain said that "in time of war" Adm. Lord Mountbatten will be boss of NATO's Mediterranean naval and air forces.

ALEXANDER, Britain's minister of defense, told a news conference: "While the United States Sixth Fleet is not now under the new Mediterranean command, the new commander-in-chief will be responsible for coordinating the activities in time of war of the American fleet with those of other naval and air units operating in the Mediterranean."

This was the first public announcement on just how much authority the new Mediterranean naval commander - in - chief will have. The ministers of the 14 NATO nations Tuesday approved both the setting up of the new naval command and the appointment by Britain of Lord Mountbatten.

The NATO communique had distinguished between the responsibilities of Mountbatten and U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney, who commands both NATO's southern command and the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

GRAIN FUTURES

Corn held steady while other grains sold-off in initial trading. But corn could not get up enough steam for a good advance. Oats and soybeans recovered about all their early declines.

Wheat at noon was ⅜ to 1 cent higher, December $2.30⅛, corn ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, December $1.61½, oats ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, December 85⅝, soybeans ¾ lower to ¾ higher, January $3.00½, and lard 15 to 22 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $9.45.

U.S. Farmers Set Record In Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers this year turned in a record production job that may not be repeated for several years.

In its final 1952 crop report, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday the harvest of crops was second to the record set in 1948 and that the production of livestock and livestock products was by far the largest in history.

The combined output of crops and livestock and livestock product was also the largest in history.

But this year's output was so large that it has started the piling up of some farm surpluses. This situation may lead the government to call upon producers to go a little easier next year. Already the Agriculture Department has suggested less wheat. It soon will suggest less cotton.

Complicating the picture is the fact that foreign markets are easing off considerably from war and postwar levels which farmers have become accustomed to satisfying.

This year's farm achievement was remarkable. It was achieved in the face of severe droughts that plagued many producing areas in the Southeast, South, Midwest and Southwest.

French To Draft Resident Yankees

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly voted Wednesday night to draft into France's army Americans of conscription age living here more than a year, either in one stay or on several visits.

The draft age in France is 18½ to 25 years. The assembly passed the bill without a debate. Raymond Triboulet, speaking for the National Defense Committee, frankly said the action was being taken as reciprocity "of the worst kind" for U. S. laws which make Frenchmen living in the United States subject to American military service.

It started at the St. Louis "gerontological congress." The conference on problems of old age brought out the fact that better mental health, physical care and nutrition and wholesome community projects for the elderly can postpone old age 10 to 15 years.

It asked that Melching's dog be buried in the same casket with him. The friend, Edgar Sampey, began a hasty search and found Melching's body under his car in the garage. Dr. John P. Smarrella, county coroner, said Melching had taken his life by running the car's engine and breating fumes from the exhaust. The dog was not in the garage.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill) said today he is "quite certain that Sen. Taft would like to be majority leader of the Senate," thus dispelling lingering doubt that the Ohioan wants the post.

Fayette Ag Agent Facing Meat Probe

WASHINGTON C. H. (AP) — Fayette County extension agent W. W. Montgomery is to appear in municipal court here Saturday concerning the uninspected meat he already has told the local board of health he sold to the Children's Home

He appeared in court Wednesday on three charges of "selling or offering for sale meat that had not been inspected" in accordance with the Health Department regulations.

He posted a $500 cash bond for his appearance Saturday morning.

The case broke wide open Sunday when the Health Board was called into special session to hear Montgomery's story.

Another special meeting was held by the board Tuesday afternoon to consider what action should be taken regarding the disposition of the approximately 1,500 pounds of beef Montgomery said had been placed in locker plant after six calves had been slaughtered on his farm.

After considerable discussion, and hearing what Dr. D. R. Junk, the board's inspector, had to say regarding the meat, the board voted unanimously to stand by its action taken Sunday and to permit Montgomery to keep the meat for consumption by himself and family.

Montgomery did not deny that he had sold the uninspected meat when questioned by the Health Board at its Sunday meeting. He said he and his son, Barton, a former meat inspector for the Army, had butchered six calves on their farm when they were bleeding excessively after they had been castrated. It was the meat from these calves, he said, that he had sold. No price was mentioned. The calves, Montgomery estimates, weighed about 400 pounds each.

There has been no indication that the state Extension Service headquarters at Ohio State University in Columbus has taken any official note of the affair. An assistant director in the office said Tuesday that he had heard nothing of it. Another in the office said he had heard reports of it, but said he had not heard of any special attention having been given it.

Pair Married 17 Years Gets Church Rites

IPSWICH, England (AP)—After 17 years of married life, Mrs. Elsie Weedon finally took her husband with her to church for a wedding "in the sight of God."

Other villagers of nearby Witnesham were astonished to hear about it today. The original wedding had taken place in a civil registry office.

"The organ played, and I had a nice wedding dress, a bridesmaid and everything," Mrs. Weedon said of her second nuptials when the news leaked out.

They have four daughters—two sets of twins—and did not want to cause gossip about the delayed ceremony, which was held Sunday.

The happy bridegroom, 41-year-old Desmond, couldn't have been more gallant had he been 24. His comment:

"As I waited at the altar and saw my wife advancing up the aisle, I thought she looked just as sweet and charming as she did that other wedding day in 1935."

181,000 Pupils Go To Fire Traps

COLUMBUS (AP)—More than 181,000 of the 1,225,537 school pupils in Ohio are housed in buildings which are potential fire traps.

This is one of the conditions the State Department of Education found in a survey now being completed. Financed by the federal government, the survey was started in March, 1951, by A. D. St. Clair, a field agent for the department. Its aim is to determine the present condition of school buildings and the needs and the resources of local school districts.

Famous Santa Editorial To Be Repeated

You know about the New York Sun reply to a little girl's letter asking if truly there was a Santa Claus.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," it said in a classic attempt to bridge the make - believe and reality. "He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exists. . ."

That was more than a half-century ago, but Virginia, now Mrs. Edward Douglas and a grandmother six times over, remembers that all she could understand then was the assurance in the first line.

"It sustained me for two or three years," she said today. "In spite of the editorial, I had a great feeling of disappointment when I found out the truth. I remember I tried to believe even when I knew Santa wasn't real."

Virginia O'Hanlon, aged 8 in 1897, wanted to be sure. So she wrote a letter to the Sun asking, "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus!"

"He lives, and he lives forever," the editorial said. "A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

The editorial received national acclaim and has been reprinted widely over the years.

Mrs. Edwards will tell its story on a television program this Sunday (ABC, 7 p. m. EST) and on Christmas Eve read the editorial, as she has for seven years, over the CBS radio network.

Federal Aid To Be Hiked In Atom Area

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government has agreed to pay more toward the cost of improving roads near a new atomic energy plant in Southern Ohio, but is insisting the state also must help.

The Bureau of Public Roads has agreed to provide 74 per cent of the estimated 24 million dollar cost of road projects in the plant area, acting roads Commissioner W. J. V. O'Leary informed Rep. Ayres.

A bureau official told a reporter this is six or seven per cent more than original government commitments to the state. But O'Leary added in his letter to Ayres:

"Much of this work will be of long-range benefit to the state of Ohio for purposes other than serving the atomic energy plant.

"It is proper that the state contribute a portion of the cost, particularly for such work as is contemplated in the improvement of U. S. 23 between Portsmouth and Chillicothe."

Ayres had suggested to the bureau that the government pay virtually all the bill for road improvement in the plant area. He voiced fears that some vitally needed road projects elsewhere in the state might be deferred so the state could divert money to the atomic roads program.

Missing Gun Tied To Case Against Ohioan

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A pistol missing from Pvt. Eugene R. Walters' Army unit was found near the place where 18-year old Mamie Ruth Shelton was abducted at gunpoint, witnesses testified today.

He also is charged with desertion, theft of the pistol and an Army jeep, and with robbing Miss Shelton's two soldier companions and stealing their car. He has pleaded innocent.

Miss Shelton, whose stepfather, M.-Sgt. F. B. Burns, is from Hot Springs, Va., testified Wednesday that she recognized Walters as her assailant by his voice.

Defense attorneys brought out from today's witnesses that there was no rust on the pistol, although it was found on the ground a month after the abduction last Feb. 3.

BY JOHN SEMBOWER

Your automobile is more likely to be stolen sometime during the next 12 months than anything else you own.

This is the grim warning of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which this month is launching a crusade to cut down car stealing which it estimates now accounts for approximately $200 million worth of stolen property annually, and is on the increase.

Conferences are being held by the FBI and local law-enforcement officials in 100 cities to map a coordinated drive against auto thievery.

A similar crisis only a half century ago led to the formation of the Anti-Horse Thief association to combat what then was becoming the leading type of larceny.

THE DIFFERENCE is that law enforcement machinery then was considered to have broken down in the face of the menace and private citizens took over, while today the FBI and local police are taking the lead.

They urge automobile owners to co-operate by taking these simple precautions:

2—Where possible, avoid parking in unlighted areas or overnight on the street.

3—Do not leave parked cars for extended periods without a regular check as to whether they still are there. A surprising number of automobiles are stolen right out of the garage.

4—Do not leave any articles of value in a parked car where the article can be seen by passersby.

In analyzing car thefts in 400 cities, the FBI has "typed" the auto thief.

He either is a professional working in one of the big rings, or he is the "joyrider" who usually is a youngster who hops into a car and speeds off without thinking very clearly where he goes from there.

Both are frustrated by ordinary precautions, says the FBI, although it is acknowledged the use of "ignition jumpers" and devices for gaining entry into cars always makes them fairly vulnerable to seizure.

The FBI points out, however, that the professional usually has to work fast and with relative safety under his lawless code, so that he ignores all but "the sure touches."

Insurance companies are in the act, too, pointing out that many of their policies now deny owners any recovery for a stolen car if its loss results from the owner's own negligence. Usually this consists of leaving the keys in the unattended car, often with the engine running.

The FBI also is enlisting the cooperation of public parking garages and local automobile dealers. Each is being asked to report any suspicious circumstances, and to aid in smashing the big interstate rings which are believed to be active.

Auto theft rings apparently have elaborate setups which literally redesign a stolen car within a few hours, and grind down the engine block so that substitute motor numbers may be stamped in.

They are regarded as particularly vicious because they supply stolen cars to be used in committing other crimes.

It is pointed out anyone who buys a stolen auto must give it up if it is identified, even if he acquires it through a reputable dealer, because there is no way that you can get good title to stolen property.

So the FBI says the slogan is, "Let the buyer beware!" and he should carefully check all title documents and car numbers.

THE TREND of auto thievery has risen until now it totals 41 per cent of all larcenies, and it has soared 90 per cent in only five years. With a record-breaking 43 million cars on the road in the United States—a rise of 44 per cent since 1942—it is feared that it will continue to rise.

In 1948, there were 4,013 automobiles stolen in Chicago, of which 3,952 were recovered; 101 were stripped. In 1951 there were 7,287 stolen, 7,014 recovered, and 443 stripped. This year the total may go above 8,000.

The relatively high recovery figures indicate that despite its growing prevalence, stealing autos is an "unhealthy" practice. The aim of the law enforcement groups is to make it pay still less to criminals.

"Eternal vigilance on the part of the public" is the biggest ally now being sought in the crusade. This includes not only locking cars and keeping an eye on them, but also not picking up hitchhikers or leaving the doors unlocked during night time driving.

HowardHughes Again Boss Of RKO Studios

The manufacturer of airplanes, oil tools and movies was elected chairman of the board of RKO yesterday, although he recently sold his controlling interest in the studio.

Noah Dietrich, J. Miller Walker, Edward G. Burke Jr., A. D. Simpson and Hughes comprise the board. Hughes succeeds Maurice H. Bent, New York City broker, who bowed out only a week after his election to the bard. No reason was given for his withdrawal.

Hughes sold his interest to Ralph Stolkin of Chicago and a group of associates several months ago for $7,093,940. Stolkin still owes Hughes 5½ million dollars and Burke now is the lone Stolkin representative on the board.

Seal Sale Nets $3,181 To Date

Pickaway County's 1952 Christmas Seal sale has netted a total of $3,181.33 in its first full month of operation.

Mrs. Evelyn Hafey, secretary to the county Tuberculosis and Health Association, said that amount represented donations from about 43 percent of the persons who received Christmas Seals through the mail.

Mrs. Hafey said a total of 1,865 envelopes have been returned from persons who received Seals through the mail. Of that total, 111 were returned without contribution.

In all, a total of 4,458 letters containing Seals were mailed throughout the county. There are still 2,593 to be accounted for.

SWEET ANNABELLE, 2-year-old white sow, sleepily watches some of her record breaking litter of 29 piglets, born in three stages over a six-day period in London. Future Cow Seen Carrying Own Bug Dope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tomorrow's dairy cow may do her own insect killing. So may other farm animals.

The Agriculture Department reported today it is testing a method of injecting farm animals with insecticides.

Once injected under the skin of the animal, the insecticide is carried through the bloodstream to all parts of the animal's body.

A fly or mosquito that pierces the animal's skin in an attempt to feed on its blood is dosed with the insecticide and dies.

The department said a chemical called lindane is the only insecticide found effective under the method.

The department emphasized, however, that the research has not advanced far enough to consider practical use of this method yet.

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

By WILLIAM RITT

ALL IS JOY in the North Pole workshop of Santa Claus -- every toy for every good girl and good boy throughout the world is finished and ready to be distributed Christmas Eve. Happy Santa thanks his Boss Helper.

THEN SANTA, brimming with good cheer, goes out to the Reindeer Corral to feed his eight trusty steeds before they start the Big Trip. But -- what's this? -- the reindeer are not there! They have disappeared completely!

SANTA looks and looks and looks but cannot find hide or horn of any of them. He follows their tracks in the snow. They lead straight to the shore of the Great Icy Sea. The reindeer have vanished but -- why? how? where?

DISCOURAGED and heartbroken, Santa finally returns home. Without his reindeer he will not be able to bring all those wonderful toys to deserving children. It will be a sad Christmas Day indeed! (To Be Continued)

Second Charge Filed Against Oxford Man

HAMILTON, O. (AP) — Emmett Sherron, Butler County chief probation officer, today signed a warrant charging contributing to delinquency against Clyde Browning, 25, who already has been charged with manslaughter in the death of Mary Ann Fildes, 17.

Prosecutor Jackson Bosch did not say what purpose officers had in mind in filing the new charge against Browning, a paper mill employe who is married and is the father of one child.

Browning, who lives in nearby Oxford, signed a statement Sunday night admitting he took Miss Fildes on an automobile ride Thanksgiving night which ended in her death. The girl, a Hamilton High School senior, was found unconscious along a road shortly after she left a Hamilton tavern with Browning. She died several hours later.

Browning contended in his statement that he offered to take the girl home after they had struck up a flirtation in the tavern. He said she jumped from his car when she became panicky because she thought he was not taking her back to Hamilton after they had driven into the country.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Loitering on the way to and from school increases the child's physical and moral hazards.

It's good preparation for truancy and juvenile delinquency later; and when the child begins to practice loitering in the early grades, he inclines to loiter later.

Wise parents check closely enough on their young school child to discover the first instances of loitering should it occur, and nip it in the bud.

The mother of a boy, six and a half, writes: "My problem is to get him to come home promptly from school. We live eight blocks from school. Many times he taken an hour to come home. His teacher called today and said he has been late the last three mornings. He leaves home in plenty of time."

She tells of another boy a year older who "sets fires, goes into unlocked garages, steals other children's small possession and is generally in trouble."

SHE SAYS they are together on the way to school and later.

"I can understand that Phil is jealous of his little brother, three, whom everyone makes such a fuss over. . . .They fight in the car, when it can be very dangerous. They play at mealtime till we are all upset. When we go shopping they run behind the counters and racks and are nuisances.

"As punishment for his loitering, I've tried spanking firmly and consistently, making him lie down till supper, depriving him of his favorite TV show, making him sit in a chair, even taking his bedtime story away. But nothing seems to work."

Let me advise that you or the father, or both alternating, go with this boy to school and come home with him in the evening until you are sure he is responsible enough to go and come promptly.

It would be much better if you would walk. Or if it seems too far, you might drive within a block or two, park your car and walk from there.

It's silly for you parents to be upset over the children's conduct at mealtime. This could be settled in a few days if you acted decisively.

When they are together in a car, don't let them sit together. If they then continue to distract the driver, pull the car off the side, when Dad should "fan" both of them.

It would be wonderful if Dad would spend much time with this lad and develop with him a workshop. It might be well to get that other boy there to make things with your son, Dad supervising. Also attract some other boys to your home.

Jealousy could be a big factor. Work on your friends so that they pay less attention to the younger boy and more to this lad. Go on reading to him and encourage him to read to his little brother. Play up his successes and good deeds. Try to find ways of having good times with him.

Q. We give our son, 14, a budgeted allowance, but pay him for a few extra jobs to help him earn money for a special purchase he has long worked toward. Do you approve of this?

A. This plan can have high merit.

Teen Tips

How do you score on today's quiz on good looks? It's for bys as well as girls. Do you know—

That blond hair is more fragile and falls out more easily than dark hair? Avoid brushing your locks too briskly, if you're a blond, and don't rub your scalp too hard with a towel after a shampoo. Treat it gently!

That blackheads are dirt-filled pore-openings? They are caused by inadequate cleansing. The best way to deal with them is to prevent them by washing your face VERY thoroughly every morning and night with mild soap, a soft bristle complexion brush and warm water —finishing with warm and cool rinses.

That when blackheads are infected, they become pimples? A soothing, medicated overnight ointment will help to heal them quickly, toning down ugly redness to make them less noticeable.

That you can camouflage skin blemishes such as pimples during the day or for a special date with a medicated lotion tinted to match your skin? It helps heal blemishes while it helps to conceal them and helps to prevent spread of infection. Girls can use it just on pimples or all over their face as a cover-up when their skin is "broken out". Boys use it only on pimples to help make them less noticeable while healing.

That deodorants are for boys as well as girls. As a matter of fact, boys perspire more than girls do, and need them more. Use it daily after a bath or shower.

HORSE WITH SENSE

WHATEVER THE EXPLANATION may be of Lady Wonder, "the horse with sense," feats already credited to the animal have the scientific world a-flutter. Psychologists who have studied the horse and watched her perform agree he is a wonder in fact as well as in name.

The mare types out answers to questions on a specially constructed machine, using her lips to operate the keys. Observers say they have observed no trickery on the part of Mrs. Claudia Fonda, the owner.

Mental capacity of so-called dumb animals has been the subject of long study. Many have been trained to perform feats so amazing they would seem to have an inherent intelligence bordering on that credited only to the human mind.

Many a man has been saved in a tight spot by the intelligence of his horse or dog. Always this has been credited to instinct with which every animal is born, as protection against its natural enemies.

No one will deny that Lady Wonder is a remarkable animal. Past feats entitle her to that rating at least. When it comes to finding missing persons she is in the realm of the average fortune teller, palmist and reader of tea leaves, probably superior to many of her contemporaries.

At least she has horse sense, which is admitted to be a valuable qualification.

CROWNING A QUEEN

ACCORDING TO AN OLD saying, a cat may look at a queen. This, of course, is nothing more than a figure of speech, but because of the wonders of television millions will have the opportunity to see a queen crowned next June. The English have changed their attitude toward making the ceremonies available to the general public.

At first, officialdom held that a step so revolutionary would "cheapen" the ceremonies. But moved by pressure from owners of television sets they have decided to permit certain parts of the ceremony to be televised.

Under the latest arrangement, the colorful procession from Buckingham palace, the actual crowning and the homage paid will be broadcast. The anointing, the communion prayers, administration of the sacrament and other religious parts of the service will be kept off the air.

Films for rebroadcasting will be sent to many parts of the world, and will be available in the United States the next day, according to television officials.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Averell Harriman once raised an exciting idea in the realm of the impoverishment of our great nation, when he said:

"I don't know of any way that one people can be rich and the rest of the world poor any more than one man in the country can be rich and the rest of the people poor."

This dictum evades the whole of human history, the developments of civilizations, the varying cultural levels of peoples, as let us say the natives of the Mariana Islands as compared with the natives of France. It ignores geography, sociology, as well as history.

What seems to bother Harriman is that he believes the United States, with only 10 percent of the population of the so-called free world, possesses over 50 percent of its wealth and productive capacity. His figures are a little wrong, but I understand what he means.

Averell, only one generation removed from a constructive builder, his father, E. H. Harriman, does not realize that what we have, we have earned. Few in the whole 300 years of Americans on this continent inherited very much. Harriman is an exception; he inherited a mighty lot. But most Americans earned their way by hard work, by building something, by inventing something, by creating something.

Our productivity was not inherited from the Indians nor was much of it imported from Europe or Asia. It was made in America by Americans. Our productivity comes out of the genius of a free people, whose greatest freedom was the right to risk their careers and prospects on their judgment.

Averell Harriman's theory is the application of levelling nations as socialism levels men down. When men speak of equality of sacrifice, they generally think of a ratio of say 9 to 1, if you look at what we contribute to the United Nations and the Korean War, or about 5 to 1 when it comes to the defense of Europe. We are only 156 million people as compared with about 240 million among the so-called free peoples in Europe; yet we have contributed well over $100 billion to Europe since 1939 and they have contributed nothing to us. They say: but they lost men in war. But so did we and we are still doing it in Korea and other places.

The exaggerated internationalism and confused sacrificial masochism on the part of men like Harriman, stimulates a reaction in this country against Europe which many Americans have come to regard as a leech upon our economy. They drive so hard against the interests of the United States, that many Americans turn not against these Americans; but against all Europeans. As a matter of fact, a feeling is growing in this country that being pro-British is only less evil than being pro-Russian because we dislike the Russians more than the British dislike us.

Common sense might be applied to international relations. We are a nation that has been generous to our friends and even to our foes. We have created a great productive capacity which in two wars and in the periods between wars, we have shared with all the world.

A New Drug Tends to Reduce Bad Effects of the Opiates

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

GREATER safety in the use of pain-killing drugs is promised by a new compound still being tried out. Taken with the opiates, it helps reduce danger to the patient, and sometimes to an expectant mother's unborn baby.

The opiate drugs are among the doctor's most powerful weapons of mercy. Many are made from opium. They include morphine, codeine, dilaudid, and many synthetic drugs, such as "Demerol." These are also the drugs that are dangerous "dope" when used illegally and not by skilled doctors and nurses.

May Be Habit-Forming

Besides easing pain, these powerful drugs have the tendency of making a person an addict, so that his body has a need for them and he is forced to take more and more.

Large doses can also prove dangerous to life. Doctors are often faced with the problem of treating patients who have taken a dangerous overdose of opiates. Dope addicts are particularly susceptible to overdose, and may die as a result.

There has been no known antidote for an overdose of these drugs. Usually, if it is too large, the victim does not survive.

A new drug, however, seems to reduce the bad effects of opiate drugs. Itself related to the morphine group, it has the chemical name of n-allyl normorphine. Its use has already saved lives.

As we all know, when a woman is in labor and expecting the delivery of her baby, opiate drugs may be given to relieve her labor pains. While welcome and helpful to the mother, these drugs sometimes have a bad effect on the baby. They can interfere with its breathing after birth, so it has less chance to survive.

The normorphine drug has recently been used to offset the opiates in women, given about ten minutes before their baby is delivered. It is found that this drug shortens the time between delivery of the face of the baby and its first gasp of air, when the mother has received opiates. The baby's breath is easier, and it has less trouble getting the oxygen it needs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. S.: How can I tell if my child has worms? What are the symptoms in such cases?

Answer: There are no definite symptoms of worms. However, the child may complain of itching around the rectum and may have periods of diarrhea.

Since there are many types of worms, it is important that the type of worm causing the disorder be discovered. The best way to discover the type of worm present is by having a stool examination. Usually either the worm or some of its eggs are found in the stool.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THE evenings were already beginning to be cool and it was now the exception rather than the rule that Emily waited in the garden for Roger's return on drill nights. On the other hand, she seldom went to bed before he came home; he generally found her in the library, reading or knitting beside the open fire. Therefore, he was surprised to find that the library, though, as usual, pleasantly lighted against his return, was empty. He turned out the lights and went upstairs, only to find their bedroom and his dressing room vacant also. He had talked with her over the telephone late that afternoon, to say that he would not be home to dinner, and she had said nothing about going out; he had almost decided that the unexpected arrival of some guest had taken her to the third floor, when Emily opened, from within, the door leading into one of the unfurnished rear rooms behind their own quarters and came toward him.

"Hello, there!" he said, going forward to give her the fond kiss which was still his habitual form of greeting. "What are you doing? Pursuing mysterious sounds which might mean there are robbers in the house?"

"No. As Mr. Cleveland said to Mrs. Cleveland, when she told him she thought that was the case, 'My dear, they are all in the Senate.' I was merely pursuing a train of thought."

"Yes? Is it a secret one? Or are you going to share it with me?"

"Of course I'm going to share it with you. I've been looking over those back rooms and wondering how you'd feel about having me fix up one of them as—well, as a sort of boudoir. After all, you have your dressing room and I haven't anything that quite corresponds to it. I've taken it into my head that I'd rather enjoy doing so. Not that it's important."

"Why, of course! I think the idea of a boudoir's quite amusing. Traditionally, the decor's rather voluptuous, isn't it? Cupids and divans and all that sort of thing? I don't believe there are many boudoirs on Beacon Hill."

"No, I don't either. And I hadn't visualized that sort. Just something rather chintzy and cozy and feminine. Perhaps I should have said an upstairs sitting room."

"Well, after all, 'what's in a name?' I know you'll make it very attractive, whatever you call it, and I do think you should have a room that's essentially yours and not ours, just as I have. I don't see why neither of us thought of it before. But since, at the moment, there isn't any furniture, chintzy or otherwise, in this future sitting room of yours, let's use our bedroom for one, shall we? I've turned out all the lights downstairs and there's something I want to talk to you about."

"You haven't had bad news, have you?" she asked quickly, as he put his arm around her and guided her toward an easy chair.

"Well, I don't suppose it could be called good. We were told at drill tonight that the National Guard's to be inducted into the Army."

"Does that mean war—war for the United States?"

"It certainly means the international situation is getting worse instead of better. With the exception of married men, the members of the First Corps Cadets are instructed to report for medical examination on their next drill night. Married men may withdraw from the Corps if they want to before the others go to Camp Edwards for intensive training, prior to being shipped off somewhere else."

"And that's what you wanted to talk to me about?"

"Yes, darling. I want to know how you feel about having me withdraw."

"How do you feel?"

"I feel terribly ashamed to do it. It isn't as if you were dependent on what I earn for support. You've got plenty to live on. And it isn't as if—well, as if we had a family."

"Of course you know I'm going to tell you to go. Of course you know I'd be ashamed too, if you didn't. You're right in saying it might be different if you had to support me or if we had a family. But since you don't since we haven't—"

There was a break in her voice. He knew it was not because she was afraid of what might happen to him; it was because she was afraid that she would never have a child. He put his arms around her, comforting her, as he had done so many times before, telling her, as he had told her so many times before, that it was too soon to give up hope—and knowing, as he did so, that his words carried no conviction, because he had given up hope himself.

The army doctor, who was making one chest examination after another, laid down his stethoscope and scribbled a few lines on the card, labeled FIELD, ROGER, that lay before him.

"You say you've been subject to broncnitis, Sergeant?"

"Well, I've had it several times—a number of times."

"You've been seriously ill with it?"

"I wouldn't have said 'seriously.' But then, of course, I'm not a physician. I wouldn't know whether that was the right word. I can ask my own doctor."

"It won't be necessary. I'm sorry to tell you that when I examined you the rales were quite pronounced."

"The rales?"

"Yes. Abnormal sounds accompanying the normal respiratory murmur."

"But those aren't serious, either, are they?"

"They can become so at any moment. You quite obviously have chronic bronchiectasis. There's also a slight heart murmur in addition to this respiratory murmur. I shan't be able to pass you."

"You mean—I can't go to Camp Edwards with the others?"

"I'm sorry," the doctor said again. But he was already glancing toward the next man. There were a great many young men to examine and it was already very late. He was extremely tired. He had put in a hard day, as had all the other specialists.

Roger had put in a hard day too. He had been working intensively on the Jerry Donovan case, in which he had his new bill of complaint almost ready to file. He knew he would put in still harder days, while he continued to work on it. No one would suggest that he was not well enough to do that.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—President Truman's waspish political nature has now conquered the generous, post-election mood in which he offered complete cooperatin with President-elect Eisenhwer during the interregnum period, between Nov. 4 and the Jan. 20 inauguration. Grimly and determinedly, the outbound Democrats are building hurdles in the path of the incoming administration.

The first evidence of Truman's glumness over the election results was reflected in his peevish and grudging offer of his presidential plane to fly Eisenhower to Korea.

More flagrant proof of his sourness and pettiness came in his tart comment on the Eisenhower-MacArthur endeavors for peace or victory in Korea. Veteran White House attaches and nesspaper reporters were shocked at the Missourian's behavior.

TACTICS — Truman's personal conduct, however, would be only an item for psychiatric study, if it were not that it is matched by administration activities which appear to be designed to embarrass his successor. In both domestic and international fields, it seems that he is trying to build pitfalls for the Republicans as they assume responsibility for the first time in a generation.

Indeed, it is understood that Truman and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the unsuccessful 1952 nominee, did not part on entirely friendly terms because of the President's outline of this sort of political strategy and plans for a Democratic comeback in 1956.

As a selfless, statesmanlike and generous individual, Stevenson sincerely favors a maximum of cooperation with Eisenhower. He made that plain in the statement he issued after his recent conference with Truman. He himself had planned a trip to Korea, if he were elected. He has no use for Truman's back-room tactics for hamstringing a future President of the United States.

CONTROVERSY — Despite numerous unsettled and dangerous controversies with England, our only major ally in the cold war, Truman has worsened relations with that country by his handling of the Iranian oil controversy and his prosecution of British and American firms involved in that Middle East dispute.

Reluctantly, and only because of persistence by the defendants' lawyers in open courtroom, Attorney General McGranery now admits that it was Truman himself who personally demanded an investigation and possible conviction of the Anglo-American firms.

In disregard of State's advice, Truman insisted on this anti-trust action last June for political purposes, hoping to make a play to small business and independent interests in this field. Senator Sparkman, the vice-presidential nominee, headed that committee, and helped to force action against the oil firms.

Then, while condemning the practices of these companies in vitriolic language that Mossadegh and Stalin re-echoed in propaganda pamphlets, Truman permitted Secretary Acheson to offer a $100 million bribe to Iran, if it would come to terms with these same firms. That was the amount of the subsidy which the secretary of state promised to Mossadegh, if he would do business with the British government.

BACKFIRE—Meanwhile, Acheson had ordered American oil firms not to try to buy or market Iranian oil, and thereby get Mossadegh off a painful, economic hook. We were then supporting 10 Downing Street on this issue.

But when this inconsistent program backfired against Truman, he reversed himself and proclaimed that American interests could buy Iranian oil, if they were willing to chance damage suits in British courts. London still maintains that the disputed petroleum is British property.

Anyway, the British are furious over Washington's handling of the whole affair. It will be up to Eisenhower to placate them when Churchill visits the new occupant of the White ouse next spring.

McGRANERY'S DRIVE—Again at Truman's personal and belated urging, the normally easy-going McGranery has started a drive against Communists inside and outside the government, paroled gangsters, allegedly crooked or inefficient Department of Justice officials, and criminals who have been subject to deportation for many years. He is cleaning up a messy house he is about to vacate for another tenant.

It is a complete reversal of the Truman tolerance toward the political underworld, a presidential characteristic which was developed fully during the Kefauver and other Senate investigations. It constitutes the first exhibition of White House indignation on these subjects.

PANDORA BOX — Obviously, none of these actions can be consumated before Eisenhower takes over on Jan. 20. They will be dumped on his doorstep at a time when he will still be only a presidential apprentice. They will provide a Pandora-Truman box of troubles for the new and inexperienced attorney general, Herbert Brownell. They will put Ike on the spot!

In the controversy between public and private power, Truman has cooked up another embarrassing scheme for his successors. But the ramifications of that plot are so extensive and important that they must be told in a future column.

"Yeah!" scoffed the examiner, "but what's that picture of Stalin for" "That," said the ex-Red with great dignity, "is for homesickness."

At Massachusetts Institute of Technology, reports Merle Miller, an English class studied "Babbitt." In the test that followed, students were asked, "Would you rather be Sinclair Lewis or George Babbitt?" Ninety per cent said they would rather be George! One student thought he ought to have been making more money, another complained, "The trouble with Babbitt was: he didn't have any hobbies."

Ladies Night Program Is Given By Kiwanis Club

Approximately 80 persons were present at the Kiwanis ladies night program, held Monday evening in the Mecca dining room.

Corsages were presented to each of the guests and the tables were decorated with white crinoline trees and other seasonal arrangements.

Guest speakers for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Kaubo Salminin of Finland, who are exchange students at Ohio State university. They both have degrees in engineering in their native country.

Mrs. Salminin told of Christmas customs in Finland. She said that the religious holiday was celebrated for several days, and that usually ham was served during the celebrations.

Mr. Salminin spoke of industry in his country and explained that his people lost one out of every three homes during World War II, and that one out of every eight women was widowed during the war. He also stated that since the war, the country has been developing the steel industry and have located mines as part of the country's development, whereas before the war the main source of income was from wood pulp.

During the program several numbers were presented by the High School Sextet and a piano solo was given by Miss Patty Shellhammer.

Dr. Lloyd Sprouse arranged the program. Members were reminded of the Mistletoe Ball, which will be held Dec. 26 at the coliseum and also the next program, Dec. 22, which will be a party at the Children's Home.

What Gift Does Missus Want? It Had Better Be The Right One

By HAL BOYLE

"What shall I get the missus for Christmas?"

No other emergency offers stern a test of a husband's real mettle.

Buying a wife a present of some kind is easy. The stores are stacked with thousands of lavish gifts. They have hired thousands of lady shopping advisers to help distracted husbands.

But the whole art of a successful family Christmas is to buy a wife exactly the gift she wants. And what is that? Just try and find out. The children subtly make their wishes known by frank and open letters to Santa Claus. But their mother won't do that.

Usually it is no task at all for a husband to find out what is on his wife's mind. He would have to put on earmuffs to keep from knowing.

But just before Christmas she clams up completely. On the question of what she would like to find under her Noel tree she plays a game of "you find out."

If you ask her bluntly, she says evasively:

"Oh, don't you bother about me. I really don't want anything."

Translated from feminine English into masculine English, this means:

"Well, dunderhead, if you come home this Christmas eve with another bottle of that cheap perfume, I'll open it and pour it all over you while you're asleep."

If she is a young bride, she will probably tell her closest girl friend what she really yearns for, and you can find out from her. But veteran wives don't play the game that simply. They confide in no one.

What can a man do? Well, I know one man who asks a ouija board, another who consults an astrologer, a third who seeks the advise of a fortune teller, and a fourth who just goes into a store blindfolded and buys the first thing he bumps into. But all of them say:

"My system doesn't really work. You better try some other one."

There are, of course, a few sound rules to follow. The first few years of marriage a wife is always glad to get things like a television set, an electric oven, or new rug. After that she warns:

"If you think my idea of a Christmas present is something to furnish this old house, you're crazy. I want something that shows you really were thinking of me as a person, not as a business partner. I need furnishing more than the house does anyway."

The surefire way out of this dilemma is to buy her an ermine coat or a yacht, and if they are the wrong size she doesn't mind going back later to exchange them herself. But these gaudy trifles are beyond the reach of the average man's purse, even in the dawn of a new Republican regime.

The only thing a fellow can do is to make the best guess he can and go ahead and buy it. In my own case I have an even tougher problem. I know what my wife would like to have, but there isn't a store in town that stocks it.

When I asked Frances what she would like for Christmas, she said:

Airline Finds Surprise In Honored Client

MIAMI, Fla (AP)—Delta Air Lines carried its five millionth passenger today and not without a flurry of excitement.

When ticket No. 5,000,000 was issued in Chicago to Miss Marcia Chapman, the line prepared to give full honors to "Miss Five Million," including an orchid corsage and a set of matched luggage.

But when Miss Chapman strolled in to claim her ticket, she turned out to be 4 years old and could barely be seen over the top of the ticket counter.

A doll was substituted for the orchids.

It was planned to have Mayor D. Lee Powell of Miami Beach greet Miss Five Million, but a quick switch was made and the greeter was Mary Lee Powell, 8-year-old daughter of the mayor.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Nom de plume will be used if requested.

EDITOR, THE HERALD:

I think it is about time that someone stands up and says a few good things about "Bugs" McCrady.

I just bought a Columbus Dispatch here in Toledo and in big print I see where he has been suspended by a fellow who had not even been born when "Bugs" was out doing good.

Some people can make mountains out of molehills, and I have learned in 50 years that those same mountains can fall in on the one who made them.

When I was a boy in Circleville, carrying The Circleville Herald for $1 a week, "Bugs" helped me out of many a jam—by his good advice—his pat on the back and to many kids of that day—He was our "Lone Ranger."

Any person that puts in as many years of service to a community as "Bugs" McCrady has must have had many good points or he would have been discharged long ago. Why don't someone make up a list of all his good deeds down through the years—also his mistakes and then place them up against the people who have been hurting an old man—and then see how his record stacks up?

I know "Bugs" is no angel—neither am I or anyone else in Circleville, unless it's my mother, but I am of the opinion it would have been more in the Spirit of Christ if the citizens of Circleville would have given "Bugs" a big heartfelt Thank You salute—instead of the $1 parking ticket that one of his patrolman gave him.

When a city, state or a community sinks so low that they fail to recognize the many, many good qualities of a person who has given his life to that city in years of good and faithful service, it's time for the City Fathers to sit down and to re-value the moral and spiritual laws and see if any good can come from Circleville.

What good can come from hurting an old man?

In closing, let me say I am proud of my Circleville: Barrere and Nickerson's Hardware; Grand-Girards Drugstore; Goldfredericks Grocery; Ben Friedmans Store; Joseph's; Sensenbrenner's; and Brunner's and Butch's Jewelry stores and many other old timers who built a good foundation on service, length of years and staying with the job.

So I think my old friend "Bugs" deserves some kind words now in his Sunset of Life.

Next Legislature Slated To Debate Tenure Proposal

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Ohio's new legislature will consider four-year terms for elected officials and state senators.

They now serve two-year terms, except the state auditor who already has four-year tenure.

The other elected state officials are governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state and treasurer.

Previous legislatures have sidetracked similar proposals. But the general assembly convening Jan. 5 might give the idea more consideration.

Advocates of the change claim it would provide more continuity for office holders and enable them to give better service. Present officials have to take time out for campaigning every year if they seek re-election, they explained.

Proponents of a convention to consider changing the state constitution offered that argument in support of their stand. The question of a convention met defeat in the Nov. 4 election.

Approval of four-year tenure by the legislature would not assure its adoption. Such a change would require amending the constitution and voters have the final say about that. Legislative approval merely would place the question on later election ballots.

The Ohio Program Commission, a permanent state planning body, decided to recommend a change to four-year terms after a study of the question. The commission accepted the recommendation from its committee on state government, headed by Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Flemming recently was named by President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to a special group to study functions of the executive branch of the federal government. He formerly was a member of the federal Civil Service Commission.

The committee recommendation did not say anything about state senators. That was added by the commission on motion of Sen. Joseph W. Bartunek of Cleveland, Democratic minority leader in the last legislature.

Neither the committee nor the commission considered proposals for four-year tenure for state representatives, who now serve two-year terms.

The committee report approved by the commission for transmission to the governor and the legislature read:

"This recommendation is designed to permit and encourage improved performance in the offices of the principal executives of the state.

"Experience here and in other states with the two-year term indicates that a newly elected official spends his first year getting acquainted with his job, and most of the next trying to get reelected.

"If he succeeds, he must still take out every other year for campaigning, and if he fails the people lose much of their investment in his training. If he decides the hazards are not worth the effort, the people are even more the losers."

The committee said elections for four-year officials should be held on even numbered years between persidential elections. The Bartunek proposal for state senators called for staggered terms so that only half the senators would stand for election every two years.

Sokolsky's These Days

And such generosity will continue as long as we can afford it. Yet, such generosity must not cause us to lose our sense of nationality. Aid for other nations does not involve a subordination in our policies to those of other countries, as we have actually done in Korea.

During the past three decades, every propagandistic device has been employed by all sorts of so-called educational agencies to lessen the belief of our own people in nationalism, in their deep-rooted faith in their own country. Even ur children have been taught that America is less to be considered than what they call "the world."

Instead of contracts among free countries, we were told to take a global point of view. Yet, nowhere else in the world has nationalism so lost caste as in the United States. The British speak of their Commonwealth with pride and of their Queen in reverence, but our children are being taught of the globe, not of their own country.

Yet internationalism stirs no emotion of pride or satisfaction or even joy. It is a sterile doctrine, negative and without prospect.

The opposite to internationalism is not isolation; it is contractual partnership among equals for mutual aid and transactions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end Gen. Eisenhower may be bedeviled by the same dilemma which has frustrated President Truman: finding a way to end the Korean War.

It might be well for the American nervous system, now raw and twitching because of the seeming endlessness of the fighting, to adjust itself to the idea Eisenhower may not be able to produce a miracle.

After all, he promised none. He said he'd go to Korea, which he did, in search of an answer. When he returned, he didn't say he had found one although he would hardly tip off the enemy by saying much publicly, anyway.

Neither Gen. Eisenhower nor Gen MacArthur has suggested he had any intention of talking with Truman about a solution.

But when Truman clouded up and rained all over both generals he probably dampened any notion either might have had about exchanging ideas with him.

So if Eisenhower and MacArthur came to any conclusion in their get-together yesterday it is something which both men probably will keep to themselves, insofar as Truman is concerned.

If that is a correct guess then the country will have to wait until after Eisenhower's inauguration Jan. 20 for any evidence that he has found any way at all to end the Korean War.

It seems clearly established that Eisenhower will hold firm to this government's present position: The Allies will not hand over to the Communists prisoners who don't want to go back to them.

And the fighting seems destined to continue unless they yield on the prisoner of war issue or are whipped into yielding on the battlefield by a new and tremendous allied offensive.

Before such an offensive could begin, Eisenhower would have to plan for it and consider the consequences, both in starting it and if it failed.

If it should fail after the loss of many lives—and a big offensive would cost more lives, for a while, anyway, than the present kind of fighting—Eisenhower would be criticized at home.

Body Of Killer Attracts Crowd

COMANCHE, Okla. (AP) — A procession of calm, curious spectators, most of whom admitted they "just wanted to see what a real bad man looked like," filed past the open coffin of William E. (Billy) Cook late into last night despite a storm of protest from the convicted slayer's family.

Cook, who admitted six slayings, was executed Sunday at San Quentin Prison, Calif.

His family at Joplin, Mo., asked an immediate halt to the exhibition of the body and claimed the funeral home has violated an agreement.

Kitty Hawk Slated To Get Sonic Boom

KITTY HAWK, N. C. (AP)—Three Air Force Sabrejets were primed to slap historic Kill Devil Hill with a triple sonic boom today in ultra-modern tribute to the birthplace of aviation.

An F86 speed run across the historic site of man's first powered flight also was on the program for the ceremony celebrating the 49th anniversary of the Wright Brothers' takeoff in their flying machine at 31 miles per hour.

The sonic boom, an atmospheric phenomenon, gets its name from the deafening reports heard when a plane exceeds the speed of sound and when it drops below it. The three F86s arranged to dive from 40,000 feet so they would crash through what is called the sonic barrier—760 miles an hour at sea level—at about 20,000 feet — and then pull out.

Meanwhile, an Air Force plane will wing its way from Dayton to Kitty Hawk bearing a wreath to be placed on the Wright Brothers Memorial here.

The event will initiate the observance of the 49th anniversary of the first flight by Orville and Wilbur Wright on Dec. 17, 1903.

Modified Medical Health Insurance Plan Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman's commission on the health needs of the nation came up today with a middle-ground proposal for solving one of the country's hottest issues—how to pay the doctor's bill.

The commission proposed a 1½ billion dollar annual outlay of federal and state funds to bolster voluntary insurance plans covering the costs of hospital and medical care for all the nation's people lacking full ability to pay.

It differs both from a plan unsuccessfully espoused by President Truman and a rival proposal of the American Medical Association.

President Truman, since 1945, has vainly plugged for a federal system of pre-paid sickness insurance for 125 million wage-earning Americans—to be financed by a compulsory tax on employes and employers, along the lines of the social security system.

The AMA has termed Truman's proposal "socialized medicine," and has campaigned for the extension of "voluntary" insurance plans—that is, plans which a person can purchase if he wishes.

The AMA, however, has never taken a stand as to whether it favored a federal subsidy plan.

Dr. Louis H. Bauer of Hempstead, N. Y., AMA chief, said a major recommendation in the report provides that "the federal government, through payroll deductions, would pay directly for the medical care of a large segment of the population. This is compulsory health insurance."

The AMA said it would withhold comment on the full report pending "careful study" by a four man committee.

The commission, appointed in November of 1951 to assess the nation's health needs, and to make recommendations as it saw fit, collected some two million words of testimony from experts in various fields during hearings held in Washington—and close to another million words in hearings throughout the country.

One of its main findings was that "despite superior medical service and low death rates, Americans are not enjoying as good health as might be expected."

One prime reason, the commission said in its report to Truman, was that people in low income groups can't afford adequate medical care—even on present pre-payment plans.

The commission called for:

1. More doctors, nurses and other health personnel. The commission estimates there may be a shortage of anywhere from 22,000 to 45,000 doctors by 1960.
2. More hospitals.
3. Increased medical research.
4. Support of industrial health and of migratory workers.

The commission estimated the federal government's share of such a program would total $1,016,000,000 annually, including the 750 million dollars for grants to states in the voluntary pre-payment plan. This would double federal health outlays.

A spokesman for the commission told a reporter that with the exception of $100 million proposed for aid to medical schools, $20 million for medical research and $10 million for federal aid in organizing medical services on a regional basis, all other funds would be on a matching basis with the states.

That is, the separate states would be expected to ante up a sum equalizing the amount placed in the kitty by the federal government, but with richer states paying more than poorer ones.

On the pre-payment of medical care, the commission proposed that direct handling of the plan would be on a local basis, with federal aid money being filtered down through the states, but with the federal government checking up on the qualifications of proposed plans through a new governmental department of health and security.

The commission was headed by Dr. Paul Magnuson of Chicago and included seven doctors from university staffs, representatives of hospitals and nurses, consumers organizations, farmers, labor and the public.

Commission officials told a reporter the prepayment insurance plan would be aimed primarily at helping people with annual incomes of under $3,000.

But it would also provide full costs for people having no income and give some aid to those people making more than $3,000 a year but still unable to pay the full cost themselves, officials said.

In general, here's how the plan would work:

Complete medical and hospital service and some dental service would be provided for all people who wanted it on a prepaid basis, whether they paid the insurance premiums themselves or got some or all financial help from the federal-state plan.

Regional authorities would be set up in the various states for the direct operation of the plans, but the insurance plans would be subject to approval by state and federal authorities. Doctors would not be in the majority on regional authority boards.

Ohio Solon Raps Delays On Dillon Dam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Secrest (D-Ohio) says preliminary work done on the Dillon Dam project in Ohio is being washed away while the dam itself remains incomplete.

Deep gullies and erosion are eating at a roadbed built at a cost of several million dollars for relocation of a railroad prior to construction of the dam, he said. He showed Budget Bureau officials pictures of the damage Wednesday.

Secrest conferred with the officials in a further effort to get money for the Dillon Dam on the Licking River included in the budget that will go to Congress next month.

The Army Engineers have asked that the Dillon Dam be provided for. The project would cost about $25,644,000. It is one-third finished.

Secrest contends that work already done on the project will be wasted unless Congress provides money to bring it nearer completion.

The roadbed has been graded, but rail must be put down and bridges constructed before it can be turned over to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Moore Wins Light-Heavy Boxing Crown

Unanimous Decision Given St. Louisan Over Joe Maxim

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Able Archie Moore, wearing his new light heavyweight crown at a jaunty tilt, now hurls a promise that carries a challenge to other hopefuls in his 175-pound class:

"I'm going to put some life into the division. Any contender who deserves a chance will get it from me."

That was one of the first statements made by the 36-year-old St. Louis Negro Wednesday night as the new world light-heavy king. Only minutes before he had won an unanimous decision over Joey Maxim, a thoroughly beaten but astoundingly game ex-champion.

There wasn't much doubt about who would be wearing the crown by the time the battering fists of Moore had mauled Joey for seven rounds.

Before the bout, Moore, who weighed 172½ to Maxim's 174½, was an 8-to-5 favorite, with the odds shifting to 12-to-5 at fight time.

JUDGE FRED Connell gave it to Moore, 87-63, and Judge Howard Hess put it 82-68. Referee Harry Kessler alone had it surprisingly close. Repeatedly warning Moore to keep his punches up, but penalizing him only once, Kessler scored the fight 76-74. The fourth round was taken from Moore for a low blow.

The crowd of 12,610 fans that flocked to the arena—and paid a gross gate of $89,487 for a new St. Louis record—also shouted approval of the decision.

Particularly in the 10th did Moore assert his punching superiority. He leaped out of a crouch and landed a smashing right that sent the 30-year-old Maxim reeling into the ropes. Only Joe's ability to tie up his opponent kept him from suffering the second knockout of his 12-year career.

AT THE END Maxim was bloody, but unbowed.

The fight was nationally telecast, with only the St. Louis area blacked out, and broadcast.

Kiner's $90,000 Pay To Be Cut

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph Kiner of the Pirates, not Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the highest salaried player in 1952, it is now revealed. The major leagues homerun king drew $90,000 last year, $10,000 more than Musial earned.

The $90,000 figure came to light when a Pirate spokesman, discussing the club, remarked:

"Kiner wasn't a $90,000 ball player last year and I think he knows it as well as we do. I have a hunch he's prepared to take a cut but I don't know whether he'll accept the full 25 per cent."

Badger Pilot Seeks Curb To Trojan Power

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Wisconsin's big problem, said Coach Ivy Williamson today as he prayed for clearing skies and a dry field for the start of the Badger practice for the Rose Bowl, is to devise means of "moving against the tremendous defense" of Southern California's Trojans.

Wisconsin's first Rose Bowl team arrived on the scene Wednesday, received a warm welcome from Tournament of Roses officials, spent a quiet night and today settled down to workouts leading up to the New Year's date with the Trojans.

"It's been a long struggle to get here," Williamson told Badger alumni, local dignitaries and his players at a reception in the ballroom of their quarters at the Huntington Hotel. "I know we have a terrific job ahead of us. I hope we can carry on in traditional Big Ten fashion."

Pro Golf Stars Out After Bonus

MIAMI BEACH, Fla (AP)—Golf's professional stars will tee off today over the scenic Normandy Isle course in quest of $13,000 in the International Four - Ball tournament.

Julius Boros, the new star from Mid Pines, N. C., was the year's top cash collector with $37,032 Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., was runnerup with $30,884.

Chisox Pace AL In '52 Fielding

The White Sox, who made 123 errors, the least in the junior circuit, compiled a .980 average. The world champion New York Yankees were next at .979 followed by Washington with .978.

Fordham Seen Quitting As Football Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Announcement that Fordham is considering abandonment of intercollegiate football re-emphasized today the depths to which the sport has fallen in the metropolitan New York area.

New York University, which reached great heights under John F. (Chuck) Meehan back in the roaring '20s, now plays a second-rate schedule. Columbia is one of the door mats of the Ivy League. Fordham is talking de-emphasis and possible resignation.

The best record of these three main New York teams during the last season was two victories, and all shared that.

Fordham won 2, lost 5 and tied 1 game. NYU had a 2-5-1 record also while Columbia finished with an even poorer over-all mark of 2-6-1. All together, they won 6, lost 16, tied 3.

The Rev. Vincent Hart, director of university development, revealed Tuesday that Fordham lost approximately $50,000 last season and has a $200,000 deficit for a seven-year priod.

He said the university is surveying its football program to decide on one of three courses:

1. To continue the present setup.
2. Drop football.
3. Adopt a middle course of deemphasis on a "back to the campus" plan.

Cold Weather Seen Hurting Rams In Tilt

DETROIT (AP)—Will the defending champions Los Angeles Rams, who played in 101 degree heat last Sunday, freeze up in the 25-degree chill of Detroit's Briggs Stadium next Sunday?

You'll hear that question among fans talking about the forthcoming tie-breaking, post - season playoff game between the Rams and the Detroit Lions for the National Conference title in the National Football League.

Coach Hampton Pool of the Rams, who can be expected to argue thus for psychological reasons, thinks the cold weather will hurt the Rams.

Coach Buddy Parker of the Lions, who should be expected to argue the other way, also thinks the cold weather will hurt the Rams.

Bookmakers around Detroit, especially those who remember how the Rams lost the NFL title two years ago in a similar sudden change of temperature, think the cold weather may hurt the Rams.

The bookies have made the Lions one point favorites. That doesn't mean too much; it's the nearest thing to an even choice.

Olson And Hayes Set For Match

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fans may well be watching the next middleweight champion of the world when Carl Bobo) Olson of Honolulu boxes Norman Hayes of Boston in a 10 rounder here tonight.

Olson strengthened his position as No 1 challenger by flattening highly rated Lee Sala of Pittsburgh in two rounds here a month ago. Last year, he lost a close 15 round decision to champion Sugar Ray Robinson, who is reported about ready to retire.

Jimmy Carter Held To Draw

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Freddy (Babe) Herman of Los Angeles fought world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter to an unpopular draw in a 10-round non-title fight here Tuesday night.

Referee John Bassanelli and Judge Billy Burke called the fight a draw, overruling Judge Fred Bottaro who gave the bout to Herman, a decided underdog.

Indian Chiefs To Powwow On Ryan Future

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians hold an unscheduled contest in the winter today, but it is in the office, not on the field.

This is the day the team's stockholders—the people who own the team—choose up sides on the quarrel between President Ellis Ryan and his other officers over how to run the baseball club.

Most of the club's stockholders were to meet in Municipal Stadium, to get a first hand look at Ryan's three-year record.

The special meeting was called by opponents of Ryan in the hope that a showdown vote would result in a new board of directors strong enough to fire him from his job.

Donald W. Hornbeck, the club's secretary and a director, is the spokesman for this group. He thinks this can be done.

Ryan and the five directors supporting him believe they wield enough support for a vote of confidence.

On the other hand, a number of people on both sides said the vote may be so close that nothing will be decided finally today.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our son John F. Groce who died Dec. 18, 1947.

Five years has passed since that sad day the one we loved was called away
What would we give to clasp his hand his happy face to see, to hear his voice and see him smile that meant so much to us; the flowers we placed upon his grave may wither and decay but the

German Sportsmen Rip Iron Curtain

FRANKFURT (AP) — German sportsmen have ripped a hole in the Iron Curtain and agreed to resume competition between the Soviet Zone and West Germany.

Relations were broken off last September because Eastern authorities refused to guarantee sports contests would not be used for political purposes. Last week end sports officials from both sections met in a West Berlin hotel and agreed to avoid all politics.

Otto Graham's Record Both Good And Bad

CLEVELAND (AP)—Look at quarterback Otto Graham's 1952 passing record one way, and it's his best in seven years with the Cleveland Browns. Look at it another way and it's his worst.

Automatic Otto, one-time Northwestern University All - America, completed 181 passes for 2,816 yards in 12 National Football League games this fall. That was 23 throws and 509 yards better than the next best pro mark, made by Pittsburgh's Jim Finks.

Only the great Sammy Baugh of Washington ever gained more yardage on his arm in a single NFL campaign—2,938 in 1947.

But look at it the other way, and the 31-year-old off-season insurance salesman had his worst year in percentage of passes completed and enemy interceptions.

For the first time in seven seasons, Otto failed to complete at least half of his throws. He tried 364, and needed just one more completion to raise a 49.7 per cent record set this Fall.

Before this season, his average was 55.5 per cent for six years.

Liddle Is Best Association Hurler

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw Don Liddle of Milwaukee's champion Brewers was the hottest American Association pitcher of the 1952 season, according to official statistics released today.

Backed by the league's best fielding—a high .975 percentage compiled by Brewer defenders—Liddle led all other pitchers in won-and-lost percentage and in earned run average. His won-lost figure of .810 was based on 17 victories in 21 decisions. In appearing in a total 34 games and pitching 197 innings, Liddle compiled an earned run average of 2.70.

Youth Sentenced

Fire Chief Wise Issues Warning On Fires During Holidays

Pails Of Water, Sand Urged For Protection

Precautions Offered In Hope They Can Be Saved, Posted

Fire Chief Talmer Wise has reminded Circleville residents a bit of carelessness can turn Christmas joy into grim tragedy within a matter of minutes

"We always issue these warnings just before Christmas and the New Year's celebrations," he said, "but none of us can read them too often.

"Dangers are increased at this time of year in many ways, and a fire can quickly change one of the happiest days into one of the saddest."

As an all-around precaution against fire in local homes, Wise suggested at least one pail of water and sand be set aside where it could easily be reached in emergency.

"It won't be nearly as good as having a fire extinguisher, of course, but it will be fairly good protection nevertheless," he said. "No matter how fast a fire department works, the damage—and deaths—can be caused before it's possible to reach the scene."

WISE CALLED particular attention to small heating stoves, often the rallying point on Christmas Eve or early Christmas morning for both young and old, with the joys of the day on their mind and not too much care in their hearts.

"If's often a family tradition to stand around in night-clothing for a few minutes while the children get their big surprise on Christmas morning," the chief pointed out. "In some homes it's been sort of a routine that's sacred even before anybody thinks of dressing and having breakfast.

"It's a tragic fact that some of the nation's worst Christmas fires begin just at that time—when everybody's happy and excited and not too careful about brushing close to a stove."

Such precautions should also be routine through all the Winter months he added, along with care against any leaking gas fumes.

Emphasizing that December through March is the heaviest fire loss period of the year, Wise offered "something a little different this year for those who know the value of precautions and how heart-breaking it can be to remember them too late." He continued:

"People everywhere these days read lists of do's and don'ts to guard against fires, and almost as fast as they read them they forget them. Most people at this particular time have only one thing in mind—and that's Christmas only a few days off.

"THAT'S WHY I'm giving four separate reminder lists, hoping that folks—even if they can't take time to read them immediately — will clip them from The Herald and tack or tape each in a spot where it may serve its purpose. In that way too, they'll serve as reminders even after the Christmas excitement is over."

For around the Christmas tree—

1. If you haven't alrady set up your tree, the longer you can wait before Christmas the better. It's safest to stand trees in water or wet sand.

2. State law forbids the sale of decorations that are not flameproof. Be careful of any homemade decorations that don't have this protection.

3. Avoid smoking around the tree. And in other parts of the house provide plenty of ashtrays. Check before leaving the house or retiring to see that no cigarettes or cigars are left burning.

4. Remove gift wrappings promptly, so that wrapping paper doesn't collect in a corner of the room.

* * *

5. USE ONLY electrical lights bearing the UL label of the Underwriters Laboratories. And don't leave the tree lights burning when you go out of the house—a quite common but dangerous habit to "show off the home."

6. When the needles begin falling from the tree, play safe and take it down.

7. Try to discourage toys operated by gasoline or alcohol.

For storekeepers—

1. Several times a day, dispose of cartons and waste materials that accumulate from unpacking goods.

2. Clear back rooms and cellars of such materials each day.

3. Allow smoking only under controlled conditions.

4. Keep aisles and exits clear.

5. Drill store clerks in the use of fire extinguishers and other equipment for the control of small fires.

6. FOR DECORATION, use nonflamable or at least slow-burning materials, and keep them away from electric light bulbs.

7. Call in qualified electricians for new wiring of extensions; have the work inspected.

8. Check fuses; be sure each one is properly sized for the circuit it protects.

For care of furnace and fireplace—

1. Never overwork or "force" a furnace or heater that is giving insufficient heat.

2. Never try to "speed up" a fire by using gasoline or kerosne.

3. Keep a metal screen in front of a burning fireplace.

4. Use care in handling hot ashes. Always deposit them in a metal container equipped with cover (never a wooden or cardboard container).

5. Keep wood, coal and flammable liquids away from furnace, the furnace room free of trash.

6. Safely dispose of trash.

FOR THOSE planning parties—

1. Don't locate the Christmas tree near any stairway which would provide a draft.

2. The tree should not block a door or any exits.

3. An inspection of the tree should be made by someone in authority to determine whether the tree has dried out ot the point that it should be removed.

4. Be sure plenty of ashtrays are provided for smokers. Don't allow smoking near the Christmas tree.

5. Be sure that all decorations throughout the room have been flameproofed.

6. Avoid using net or gauze-like fabrics for dresses, costumes or children's clothes. Loosely woven fabrics easily catch fire.

7. If loosely woven costumes have to be worn, they should be flameproofed with the following solution: mix 9 ounces of borax and 4 ounces of boric acid in a gallon of water. Dip the fabric into this solution, wring by hand, then hang to dry. This flameproofing method must be repeated after each laundering of the garment.
